Another Shooting Match at Dublin.

The Americans Again Victorious.

More Business Failures in London.

The Difficulties in Burmah Not Settled.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Press Comments on the Rifle Match.

DUBLIN, June 30.—The papers allude to the victory of the American riflemen in congratulatory terms. The Freeman's Journal says it looks for revenge in the future. The Express trusts the contests will become annual, as they do much to cement the friendship of the two countries. The Mail hopes that the result will be a better appreciation in the United States of the Irish character and aspirations.

Another Victory for the American Riflemen.

DUBLIN, June 30.—There was shooting to-day at Dollymount for the Spencer cup, free to all comers. Messrs. Bruce, Yale, Dakin, Gildersleeve, Ballard, Coleman and Canfield, of the American team, and all members of the Irish team and shooting club took part. The contest resulted in another victory for the Americans. R. C. Coleman won the cup, making a score of 47 out of a possible 50. The range was 1,000 yards. Gildersleeve and Yale also won prizes during the day's shooting.

More Failures.

LONDON, July 1.—The failures are announced of Dacosta, Raalte & Co., with liabilities of $250,000, and Kilburn, Kershaw & Co., East India and silk brokers. The liabilities of the latter firm are said to be $2,000,000, but the estimate is probably exaggerated.

ST. LOUIS.

Steam Tug Burned—Another Horrible Outrage—A Railroad War Impending.

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 30.—About one o'clock this morning the steam tug Sam Clubb, lying at the wharf at East St. Louis, caught fire, and after being cut loose, floated down stream, struck on a bar and burned to the water's edge.

Another one of those brutal outrages, several of which have occurred in this county during the past year, was committed about nine miles from the city on Monday afternoon. While Miss Eliza Chamberlain, nineteen years of age, was going from her father's house on horseback to a neighbor's, she was pulled from her horse by a burly negro, all her clothing stripped from her, and most fiendishly outraged and otherwise cruelly treated. She fainted, and lay in the road more than an hour, when she revived and dragged herself to a neighbor's house, about a mile distant, where she went into spasms, and her life for a time was despaired of. The police and citizens were in search of the black wretch yesterday, and a negro, answering to the description given by Miss Chamberlain, was arrested in this city last night. The citizens in the neighborhood of the outrage are intensely excited, and swear they will hang the monster if caught.

The St. Louis, Kansas City & Northern and the Kansas Pacific Railway have entered into a joint traffic arrangement, to take effect to-morrow, under which the roads will hereafter run trains from here to Denver, Colorado, without change at Kansas City, as heretofore.

The St. Louis & Southeastern Railroad will to-morrow put passenger fare from here to Nashville to ten dollars. This is regarded as a declaration of war between the above named road and the Iron Mountain & Southern Railway and its southern and northeastern connections, and the fight expected to be lively and vigorous. It is alleged that other roads centering here are preparing to cut rates, and it is expected there will be something like a general war between the Western roads.

POLITICAL.

Iowa Republican State Convention.

DES MOINES, June 30.—The Republican State Convention met at eleven o'clock this morning. After the appointment of the usual committees, the Convention adjourned until this afternoon.

Shortly after reassembling the Committee on Resolutions reported a platform, substantially as follows:

1st. The republic is a nation, one and indissoluble.

2nd. Gold and silver are the only reliable legal tender, and a currency convertible with coin should therefore be gradually attained.

3d. A revenue adjusted to encourage home industries.

4th. The efforts of the Government to collect the revenues and punish frauds are approved.

5th. The Government should concede no further lands to railways or other corporations. Such land should be reserved for actual settlers.

6th. The patent laws must be revised to relieve industry from the oppression of monopolies.

7th. The policy of the Administration in the settlement of the difficulties between ourselves and other nations by arbitration is a worthy one.

8th. The Republican party of Iowa opposes a third term, and believes that President Grant's letter to Gen. White fairly removes that issue from our politics.

9th. That we demand that all railways and other corporations shall be held in just subjection to the law-making power, constitutionally exercised.

10th. Endorsing free education and the present system of public schools.

11th. Approving the National and State Administrations.

12th. Cordially inviting all opposed to the restoration of the Democratic power to forget all past political differences and unite with the Republican party in maintaining the cause of true reform.

Samuel J. Kirkwood was nominated for Governor, and J. J. Newbold for Lieutenant Governor.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 30, 1875.

Examination of Joseph Loeder.

The examination of Joseph Loeder began this morning. Robert annis testified that in a conversation he with Loeder about his (Loeder's) statent, the latter had told him there was so truth in it, with a good deal of exaggeran; that with regard to the kissing betwi Mrs. Tilton and Beecher, it was cort; that he went into the room as descrit, and in coming out saw Mrs. Tilton and echer, but there was nothing unusual in tr attitudes.

Nothing new waseited on cross-examination. Owing to absence of other witnesses the case wadjourned till to-morrow.

Consultation Among the Lawyers.

The counsel for Tilton were in consultation at the Court house. Messrs. Abbott, Shearman, Tracy and Hill came up shortly after, and went to the consultation, after which Messrs. Abbott and Pearsall left the building, but would give no information as to what was proding At 2:15 P. M. the conference broke, but the counsel are still reticent.

At ten o'clock Court house was locked and the jury read for the night.

Meeting of Northern Pacific Bondholders.

An adjourned meeting of Northern Pacific Railroad bondholders was held here to-day. About twenty millions bonds were represen. The meeting was large, representing parts of the United States. The objections that have been urged to the provisions in decree of foreclosure were obviated by agreement between all parties, which will be accepted by the court. The differences objections to the plan of foreclosure and the plan known as the Livingston plan, were harmonized by the adoption of a series of mandatory resolutions. The meeting closed in a spirit of complete unanimity and with a general feeling that the investors in the road would be saved and the road completed.

The "Boss" Thief's Case.

The motion for a reduction of the bail in the case of Wm. M. Tweed has been withdrawn for indefinite period. It is presumed that this action was taken on account of Judge Davis sitting in the chambers where the motion was to have been made.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 30, 1875.

Changes in the Treasury.

Mr. J. Gilfillan to-day assumed the duties of Cashier of the Treasury, and Maj. J. W. Power takes charge of the Warrant Division. Many minor changes were also made in the reorganizing of the Treasury service.

The committee to count the funds in the Treasurer's office will commence work to-night. The commission will consist of Dr. Jno. Blakely, President of the National Metropolitan Bank; Mr. S. E. Middleton, of the banking firm of Middleton & Co.; A. H. Diepe, of the Freedmen's Bank Commission; H. Hervey, Special Agent of the Treasury, and Messrs. C. H. Brown, Jno. Patton and T. C. Dickerson, Chiefs of Division in the Treasury Department.

The Treasury Department Reorganized.

The Treasury Department was to-day reorganized under the Kellogg bill. The salaries of all bureau officers and chiefs and assistant chiefs of the divisions have been increased. The general force of the Treasury will, by this bill, be reduced to the extent of 384 employes, at a saving, it is claimed, of half million dollars.

THE STORM.

Damage to Railroads in Indiana.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—The Gazette's Cambridge City (Ind.) special says another heavy rain storm in that vicinity, on Monday night and Tuesday, inflicted great damage on railroad tracks, culverts and bridges on the Fort Wayne, Muncie & Cincinnati Railroad. The bridge over Lick creek, north of Connersville, and one hundred feet of embankment, was washed away. The Baker Run bridge, between Milton and Cambridge City, was badly damaged, and forty feet of embankment is gone. The embankment at the culvert south of Lockport is washed away, and the track between Milton and Beeson's, a distance of two miles, is in a very bad shape. On the Whitewater Valley Railroad a large bridge between Beeson's and Cambridge City is gone and the track badly damaged.

MEMPHIS.

The Railway War.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 30.—There is no change to report in the situation as regards the Memphis & Little Rock Railroad troubles. Mr. Dow, as agent for the Trustees, still holds possession of the road, and the whole matter will doubtless be transferred to the Arkansas courts for settlement. President Greenland states that his object in turning the road over to the trustees of the first mortgage bondholders was to prevent the forclosure of the mortgage, and secure the employes their past due wages. He also states that he has repeatedly attempted to get a quorum of the directors together to take action on the matter, but had failed to do so.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

Verdict of Not Guilty in the Thompson Case—Peter Herdic Gets a Nice Lift From a Jury—A Big Civil Case on Trial.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., June 30, 1875.

The jury in the case of the United States vs. Thompson and Postlewaite, retired yesterday at 1 P. M., and after a short absence returned a verdict of not guilty.

Joseph Hilscher, of Williamsport, plead guilty of selling liquor without special United States license, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and imprisonment in the Lycoming county jail for thirty days, the smallest sentence possible. Phillip Graef, of Clinton county, same charge, verdict not guilty.

R. H. Chase, Williamsport, same charge. This case occupied the attention of the Court for a good while, and after the jury had been absent for some time they returned for instructions. Benton Kerr had not understood the testimony correctly and was a little stubborn. After the Court gave the desired instruction the jury again retired, but when Court adjourned had not returned with a verdict. The jury remained in the room until 4 P. M when it was clearly to be seen that no verdict could be arrived at, as there were several stubborn jurors on, and one of the jurors taking very sick word was sent to Judge McCandless, at the Herdic House, of the state of affairs. His Honor immediately went to the Court House and discharged the jury. If this case and two bankrupt cases which are to be tried yet do not take too long, the District Court will adjourn to-day.

In the Circuit Court the case of Benson vs. Peter Herdic was resumed and concluded. The suit it will be remembered was brought on ten notes given by Mr. Herdic in payment for water pipes. The defendant alleged that the pipe were worthless, and that he has not only had no benefit, but positive damage resulted therefrom. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that Mr. Benson should take the pipes back, and Mr. Herdic need not pay the notes, but should receive $4,600 damages from plaintiff. The verdict was a great surprise to Mr. Benson, and all parties think that he made a sad mistake in beginning the action.

A jury was next empaneled in the case of Geo. W. Warren, a banker of Boston, vs. M. C. Mercur (a brother of Judge Mercur, of the Supreme Court of this State), of Towanda; Bradford county. The action is brought on notes endorsed by Mr. Mercur to the amount of $72,000. It appears that in 1871 and 1872 a company was formed called the Sullivan and Erie R. R. and Coal Company, of which Mr. Mercur was President. Bonds to the amount of $1,200,000 were issued, and when the interest became due notes were drawn and endorsed by Mr. Mercur to the amount of $72,000, and negotiated by Mr. Warren. On trial.

There is no prospect of this Court adjourning until the end of this week, and as all the jurors are summoned on both Courts, Marshal Hall will not discharge any until both Courts have adjourned. Judge Strong is pushing business lively, holding Court open from 9 A. M. until 5 P. M., with an hour's intermission for dinner. His Honor is a hard worker, and keeps lawyers and jurors down to work.

The weather here now is considerably cooler and more comfortable than it has been for the past week. JUROR.

WOOL ITEMS.

WOOL buyers are now offering from forty to forty-three cents per pound in Washington county.—Brownsville Clipper.

ADAM STONER, of Westmoreland county, sheared 193 lbs. of wool from 32 ewes—a little over 6 lbs. for each sheep. The same ewes raised 39 lambs. The wool was washed on the sheeps' back.—Brownsville Clipper.

IN the local wool trade there has but little developed since our last issue. Mr. Auld, of this county, we learn, had a contract to fill of 30,000 lbs, and filled it last week—paying as high as 42 cents. Mr. Oaks, a well known wool buyer and manufacturer, of the east, was in the north-eastern part of this county and in the south-eastern of Washington county last week, and bought some wool, taking his choice of the clips of that section, and the highest price payed by him was 43 cents. It will not be safe to hold wool too long this year for a higher price.—Waynesburg Republican.

ABUSED STREET CAR HORSES.

The Oakland Passenger Railway Prosecuted by the Humane Society and Fined for Cruelty.

There was a hearing yesterday evening before Alderman Cassiday in the suit instituted by Superintendent Street, of the Humane Society, against Oscar Tanner, Superintendent of the Oakland Passenger Railway, for cruelty to animals in working a horse with a sore shoulder. The first witness examined was the prosecutor, who said that on Sunday last he found a horse with a sore shoulder assisting in drawing a car on the Oakland line. He considered it cruelty to the animal to compel it to work when in that condition. Peter Carr also testified that the horse was owned by the plaintiff and that it had six wounds, five of which were red and raw, and two of which, on the right side, seemed to be discharging. This comprised all the testimony for the prosecution.

Mr. Robert Arthurs, who appeared for the defense, claimed that the Act of Assembly applicable to the case used the words "wanton and maliciously," and argued from that that the plaintiff could not make out a case because the railway company is directly interested in the good treatment of its animals and that their abuse would be to the disadvantage of the corporation. For the defendant, Geo. D. Walker, boss at the Oakland stables, testified that new horses are always liable to blister at the shoulder, and that care is taken of them by applying pads and healing potions to the sores, which are kept clean by the former and hardened by the latter. He said that if horses are taken from the cars and cared for they get sore soon after being returned to work, and that the best method is to care for them while at labor. In the instance for which this suit was brought the horse was blistered. On cross-examination, the witness testified that they had had the horse about a year. He discovered the sore in the early part of last week. The animals used by the company are required to travel about fifteen miles a day, making three round trips one day and four the next. The evidence of the defendant, Mr. Tanner, related principally to the amount of labor the horses are required to perform. He stated that the cars of the Oakland line weigh about 2,800 pounds each, and the others in the neighborhood of 3,500 pounds. They are supposed to carry sixteen persons, but he had seen twenty in them, and had collected as high as eighty-two fares himself when four horses were attached. A trip of five miles is made in one hour and fifteen minutes. He said that he had seen the stable boss wash and care for horses and that drivers are instructed to report when any of the animals need attention. Gen. Barton said that it was his theory that to work horses with sore shoulders did not materially injure them if they are properly cared for at the same time. This concluded the testimony, after which addresses were made, and at the finish the Alderman fined the defendant ten dollars and costs, which were paid. The defense wanted to appeal the case, but the fine was too small to admit of such a proceeding. The entire hearing was characterized by good feeling on both sides. Mr. Arthurs invited Superintendent Street to visit the stables, become better acquainted with the officers of the line, see the care bestowed upon the stock and he would be convinced that no cruelty to the horses was intended. Mr. Street replied that he had already visited the stables and had found thirty horses with seres on them marked down against the company.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

A Suspected Murder of Five Years Standing.

A reporter of this paper was at Bayard station a little town in Ohio, eighty-three miles west of Pittsburgh yesterday. Here he found the inhabitants of that village somewhat excited over a suspected murder of five years standing. At this place is a hotel, St. Charles by name, which is superintended by J. M. Leith, Esq. Mr. Leith has always borne a reputation above reproach, and is spoken of as an upright honorable citizen. Our scribe went into the hotel to converse with the proprietor for a short time, and was soon confronted by a man about fifty years of age, who opened the conversation by saying "I suppose you have heard of the latest sensation in Bayard?" An affirmative reply was given, when Mr. Leith continued: "About five years ago it was reported that a man came here to stop with me over night with considerable money in his possession. Some mischievous person said he had been murdered and thrown into the well in my yard, and that I had committed the deed. About three years ago the water in the well became unfit for use, and I covered it over, and this, I suppose, added fuel to the fire, and the report was again circulated that a murder had actually been committed. The strangest thing about this whole matter is, that, although the report has been in circulation so long, it never reached my ears until one week ago yesterday." Here our reporter was handed a paper signed by twelve leading citizens, which explained itself. As soon as the accused learned how far the report had traveled, he at once took proper measures to secure a thorough investigation into the affair. Twelve men of unquestionable integrity were selected to make a thorough examination of the premises, and a time was set. Two or three days ago the men assembled and proceeded at once to the examination of the well which rumor had said would lead to a startling discovery in the shape a human skeleton, which would be all that was left of a murdered man placed there years before. The investigation was carried on carefully and accordingly a man was engaged who descended into the well and began the process of cleaning it out. The water and dirt which had accumulated was all removed, but no traces of anything of a suspicious character was found. The committee next made a survey of the premises and searched the house in order that they might make an intelligent report of the result of their work. After spending the entire day looking around, which was done at the suggestion of Mr. Leith, they united in giving a certificate of exoneration to the accused, which was favorably regarded by all who knew him. Attempts are now being made to trace the report to its origin and some interesting developments are looked for.

····Some of the oil dealers complain against the publication of items concerning their business, which occasionally find way into the newspapers, and which they would sooner keep private. Since oil is one of our staple products, all are more or less interested in the welfare of those engaged in its handling, and, hence, the reporter only does his duty in recording all he ascertains about the movements of the trade, and dealers should be more anxious to give such news than to withhold it. If the scribe does not get his oleaginous items refined, he is not to blame for furnishing them crude.

····Many days ago we told in these columns how a beautiful and fashionable blonde while enjoying an afternoon nap, had suffered the loss of the whole stock of golden tresses vouchsafed her by nature, an unknown person being the scissoring thief. The item proved a great traveller, having, from the novelty of the incident related secured re-publication in most of the newspapers of the country. No objection could be made to the universal publicity of the true narrative, but the reporter who wrote it does feel ashamed that his pretty heroine has been extravagantly done up this week in an elaborate wood cut in the Day's Doings, of New York, which represents her slumbering softly in a luxurious drawing room, while a wicked looking brute, gorgeously attired, is engaged in the tonsorial theft. We are sure the picture is a good one as it must have been photographed on the spot, and the busy detectives engaged in ferreting out the robber of the golden locks might gain a fair clue by corresponding with the artist who furnished the sketch.

THE LATEST FASHIONS.

Lace Sacques and Mantles—Black Genadine Dresses—Shirred Silk Flowers, &c.

Lace Sacques.

Lace sacques will be the popular outside garment for midsummer. The favorite shapes are long, neatly fitted in the back, loose in front, of equal length all around, with half flowing sleeves. It is safer to buy this shape than those with long front and short back, or any other fanciful shape that is conspicuous when the fashion changes. Guipure lace sacques are especially stylish this season. They came in rose and stripe patterns of the best French guipure, edged with lace to match, for $65 and upward. These with jet beads in the meshes are left over from last season, as beads are not seen on new laces. Lower-priced jackets have imitation guipure centres that are scarcely told from real lace, and are bordered with real guipure edge. These cost from $20 to $40. Ladies who are expert needle-women make their own lace jackets. They are the French sacque pattern, with only one seam down the back, and with a row of insertion in all the seams. Large figures and small patterns are most effective in these home-made sacques. Llama lace sacques will be more generally worn than ever, as no lady now objects to wearing this durable lace. Rich women who have fine thread lace sacques or shawls buy a substantial llama jacket to save the fragile thread garment; on the other hand, llama lace is now so inexpensive that it is bought by women of limited means who cannot afford any other lace. The designs imitate those of thread lace jackets, and the shapes are precisely the same—long slender sacques even all around, almost as close-fitting as basques, and with medium flowing sleeves. The prices range from $19 to $30; those at $30 are as fine as any sold last year for $40; those at $25 are very desirable. Merchants say laces are lower priced this season than they have been for many years.

Lace Mantles.

The novelty in lace garments is a small mantilla of the old time shape, with long square fronts and short round back. This is made of many rows of French or llama lace, in rows slightly full, sewed on a foundation of black net. Sometimes rows of jet fringe glisten amid the lace; a full ruche trims the high neck; bows of gros grain ribbon are in the front and back; and narrow ribbons underneath confine the cape at the waist. Those of French or llama lace cost from $11 to $35; made of real lace, they range from $25 to $50. They are considered especially stylish with black dresses of silk or grenadine, and with light fanciful summer dresses. More matronly looking mantles have large deep capes behind, while the fronts are lapped like a fichu, and passed under a belt; they cost from $15 to $50.

For the watering places and garden parties are white mantillas made of Italian Valenciennes lace, and costing from $12 upward. The pretty round cardinal capes, so popular with young ladies, are made of real Valenciennes lace and rows of insertion, with full lace ruff, and bows of Sevres blue ribbon with long flowing ends.

The newest black lace cardinals are quite deep, and are formed of alternate rows of beaded French insertion and gros grain ribbon, with an edge of lace on the bottom; these cost $20. Beaded Spanish lace cardinals cost from $15 to $25. These elbow capes are very commonly worn, as they are inexpensive little wraps, easily made at home. They are small round capes, falling to the waist. The foundation is black Brussels net—tulle is not strong enough—upon which seven or eight rows of lace are mounted. The beaded Spanish blonde lace once sold for two dollars a yard may now be bought for one dollar, and even less.

Black Grenadine Dresses.

French lace is used more than anything else for trimming black grenadine dresses this summer. Such a quantity of lace is required for the basque, sleeves and overskirts that ladies are not willing to buy expensive thread lace and have it endure the hard usage that comes to black grenadine dresses—the standard dress of the summer. Moreover, the French laces imitate real thread lace so admirably—even copying their irregular meshes—that it is impossible to detect them except by touch. Next to laces, fringes of most intricate and fanciful design are chosen. These make a change from the self-trimmings that have been so long used, and are still retained for lower skirts, though they are not effective in the plaid, check, damask, Mexicaine grenadines that have superceded plain canvas grenadine. The most popular patterns are open checks, and the larger blocks a fourth of an inch in size; those with plain checks alternating with checked are also stylish. It is an unusual thing to see lower skirts made of grenadine. They are almost invariably silk, and the flounces may also be silk if the skirt is needed for other suits, but very many have shirred and knife-plaited grenadine flounces mounted on silk.

Another fashion is that of shirred silk flounces, elaborately trimmed with grenadine plaitings. The grenadine overskirt for very dressy costumes is very elaborately shirred, caught up with long-looped bows of the repped silk called turquoise, and edged with a frill of lace. The basque is grenadine laid smoothly over gros grain like that used for the skirt, without other lining, and abundantly trimmed with lace on the edge, down the front and back in jabots, around the neck and on the wrists. Simpler toilettes of grenadine have merely a basque and deep apron of any of the plaid or matelasse patterns, edged with knife plaitings of silk, and worn over the black silk skirt of some other costume.

The season of grenadines is so short in this climate that economy is desirable in getting them up. Nine or ten yards of grenadine are sufficient for the dress just described. Very pretty qualities are found in narrow widths, of mixed silk and wool, $1.37½ or $1.50 a yard. The deep round overskirts of the simple shape that has so long been popular are worn with these dresses, as they conceal all the untrimmed part of the silk skirt worn with them; others more fanciful have a deep apron, with a back breadth caught up in a row of puffs, and edged with plaitings of silk. Little fichus of grenadines edged with lace or fringe are seen on imported grenadine dresses. Velvet-barred grenadine over a skirt of black velvet, and also velvet sleeves, make a rich dress that will not be considered too heavy for August at the seaside and at fashionable watering places. Colored grenadines and Mexicaines will be more worn this season than they have been of late.

New Style Trimming.

The new fancy for trimming white plaited waists is that of embroidering the collar and cuffs with color. Indigo blue or Turkey red sprays are wrought in the corner, and the edges are neatly scalloped. These white waists will not go out of fashion, as they are economical and also comfortable. Plain white ones, however, are preferred, as figured ones are now made in the commonest prints. White Nainsook waists, with plain linen collar and cuffs, cost $2.75; embroidered, they cost $1 more. Linen waists are $4 without embroidery, and $5 with it.

Belts.

Russia leather and morocco belts are again worn. Black belts with chased silver buckles and several joints are most fashionable. An extravagant fancy is that of having the monogram of the wearer engraved on the buckle. Silver chatelaine ornaments and a fan chain depend from the side. More dressy belts, to wear with silks and grenadines, are of plain cross-grain belt ribbon, with chatelaine bow of ribbon on the left side. This bow is a cluster of long loops of gros-grain ribbon, and two ends reaching to the knee. Showy wide belts of jet beads and passe. Sashes are reserved for evening dresses.

The Reason Why.

We are often asked how it is that the Boston Clothing Store at 95 Smithfield street, is always crowded with customers, and why its large daily sales are constantly on the increase? The reason why is a two-fold—or three-fold reason. First, the parent establishment, where the clothing is manufactured, is one of the most extensive in the whole country, whereby the materials and labor are on a scale so large that every economy of cost is secured. Second, the House believes in the proverb that "a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling," and on this principle contents itself with extremely small profits, which on very large sales aggregates more than large profits on small sales, and enables the concern, with the aid of liberal advertising, to become widely known and popular. Popular, we say in the third place, because Mr. E. A. Rossiter, the Superintendent of the Boston Clothing Store, besides being a courteous and obliging salesman and indefatigable in his attention to all comers, has from the beginning dealt squarely, never deceived a customer, but dealt so openly, frankly and fairly with his patrons that they are sure to came to him again and again as they have occasion, and also to recommend their friends to his store as the best place to get clothing of good quality, well made and surprisingly cheap. These are the reasons why the Boston Clothing Store continues to have large daily sales, while others in the trade are comparatively idle and constantly complaining of dull sales and hard times. The concern has fairly earned its advanced position, and we hope will realize its legitimate fruitage.

THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1875.

BONDS at Frankfort 92½.

PETROLEUM at Antwerp 25f.

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 117.

THE Commencement exercises of Washington and Jefferson College are unusually interesting, and the account of them published in the GAZETTE will be found full and very interesting.

MAYOR STOKELY, of Philadelphia, has issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens to be sparing in the use of water, as that commodity is likely to run quite short, if not give out altogether. What is the matter with the water business? It appears to be out of joint all over the country, and is the most prolific source of uneasiness in more ways than one?

THE trustees of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad having expended the amount originally subscribed, viz.: ten million dollars, are now seeking to negotiate an additional loan of five millions, stating that it will require that amount to complete the road. One thing is certain the South needs more railway facilities, as the present roads are taxed to their utmost, and then fail to move the great cotton crop in season. It is to be hoped the amount needed will be obtained.

JOHN BRIGHT is said to be writing his auto-biography, and expects soon to publish it. It would prove a highly interesting work, as he has filled many difficult and responsible positions in his native land, and has fought his way up through much opposition and through stormy scenes. His friendship to the cause of our Union, when assailed by foes from without and at home, has endeared him to every good man who loves liberty and hates oppression. He is looked upon all over the world as a man of great personal influence and with a character beyond reproach.

GEN. SAMUEL F. CAREY, the Democratic nominee in Ohio for the Lieutenant Governorship, is receiving rather rough handling by the press of all parties. He has been on so many sides of all leading questions during his political career that he is repudiated by all classes of every shade of politics. He has accepted nominations at the hands of the Temperance, Anti-temperance, Labor Reform and Know-Nothing parties, and lastly gravitated, from sheer want of any respectable following, into the Bourbon party of Ohio. There he will in all probability remain.

THE strikers in the Lehigh region—following the example of their brethren in Wyoming Valley—have ended the six months' lock-out and gone to work with a will that promises good and permanent results. They are making with the operators contracts to run throughout the year, and from all present indications, the troubles which have so long existed in the coal regions, causing such wide-spread suffering and loss, are at an end. Like all other strikes of this character, nothing has been gained that could not have been agreed on through the exercise of a little common sense.

THERE is no small likelihood of the Hon. Wm. M. Tweed, of New York city, turning up one of these days as a much abused man, and there is therefore good promise of his old love, Democracy, making of him an available candidate for some office within their gift. The only trouble about Tweed's sentence, in the mind of every honest man, was that it was not long enough for full punishment for his crimes; but yet a New York Judge has been found who turned him loose on a mere technicality. Once in the tombs, he ought to have remained there, no matter if the Judge who sentenced him did make a little mistake on the right side.

TRIAL BY JURY, which we used to consider the very palladium of justice and our liberties, is undergoing just now a rather severe strain, if one considers the mockery of a decision attempted to be forced in the Beecher trial. It does not matter much what the verdict in that case may be, the reading people of this country have, perhaps, each for himself, made up his mind fully as to the quantity and quality of Mr. Beecher's guilt or innocence. But does it not appear odd that twelve men should be shut up together until forced against their wills, and in order to gain their own liberties, made to agree upon a common verdict? Should such a course fasten guilt upon any man, or acquit him of it? Justice is hard to obtain if one or two of the twelve turn out of the obstinate kind, at best; but when after a full trial the jury are to be influenced by stories of perjured wretches, and arguments overheard among the lawyers in which the latter's opinions are fully ventilated, the whole thing becomes a farce and a perfect mockery. For our part, we would submit our case, if we had one, to the decision of the bench, rather than risk it to the uncertain chances of a jury composed in part, perhaps, of men utterly incapable of forming a just opinion upon any subject.

THE Post tells us "There are two political parties; one the Republican, which has been in control of the Government ever since the war; the other the Democratic."

Ah! But again:

"If the people of the United States are favorably impressed with this long continued Republican rule, with its animus and its actions, there is no need of a political change."

We think so too. Further it says truly:

"High above all such accomplishments ranks the plain, square honest man, endowed with a proper share of common sense. The country is in no danger when its interests are entrusted to such hands."

We agree again. But warming up, it adds:

"The people of the United States are full of practical common sense, and they can see clear through these political claptraps, and laugh at their inventors. As men of sense they cannot fail to perceive that under Radicalism, and Republicanism, capped at last with Grantism, the country has been constantly drifting away from sound Democratic principles toward the rock of central despotism, upon which we should ultimately split and go to pieces, if we do not now, with a strong hand, take hold of the tiller and turn the ship of State in the right direction, toward Democratic safety."

Neighbor, the weather is very warm, dog days are at hand, and we pray you to allay your fierce excitement. The "rock" surely will not be reached until cold weather approaches, and you can hold on to the tiller "with a strong hand" until after harvest, if that will do you any good; but keep cool, do; there's nothing like it for July and August. We advise as a counter-irritant to your blood-boiling fever that you read a few passages from the refreshing Maine Democratic platform, wherein it says: "A sound currency, coin [illegible] essential to stability in [illegible] restoration of prosperity, steps toward specie payment, and no steps backward." After that you can look through the various flip-flaps of Western Democracy, wherein you will find your friends in one State yelling "greenbacks for bonds," and in another, "hard money and no rags." Glorious Democracy! What a wonderful gymnast you are! First up one side, then down another, and still you are not happy. That fatal "rock" which you ever try to avoid haunts your dreams and doubtless causes you to wiggle-waggle. Now, tell us, what is genuine, unadulterated Democracy? What will be its policy if the reins of power are given into its hands? Will it stand by free trade and specie payments, like Maine Democrats chirp? Will it go straight greenbacks, like Iowa Democracy? or will it do like the Ohio unterrified try to do—stand on all sides of all questions at one and the same time?

THE troubles and subsequent investigations into the Water Works affairs in Cincinnati have at last culminated in the indictment, by the Grand Jury of Hamilton county, of the Secretary of the Water Works Board, of the Collector of Water Rents, and one of the Trustees of the Board, for embezzlement. Other suits are likely to grow out of the gross mismanagement of the affairs of the Water Works, and if Mayor Johnston escapes it will be by "the skin of his teeth." If not absolutely guilty of malfeasance, he appears to have been criminally negligent of his sworn duties. Of the matter as it now stands, the Gazette says:

"Public expectation will be disappointed, we presume, that one other person was not included in these indictments. Enough has been revealed by investigation to show that nothing but indictment and criminal trial are adequate to deal with the offenses done in the Water Works administration. The time has come when it is necessary to have it decided whether embezzlement of public money is a crime, and whether the ascendency of a certain political party means license to steal. We are not conscious of any party feeling that would pursue innocent men; but we can not avoid the reflection that, as the Democratic party got the control of the Water Works Board, its character, which had long been high, sank, till it has become a den of thieves. And, so far as we know, the Democratic party in this city, county, and State, whatever it gets into its hands it pollutes."

The Grand Jury also report abuses and a loose system of mismanagement by the Water Works Board which impairs their usefulness, and it is likely they will all resign. The question is not an inapt one,—is it possible now-a-days to get an honest and careful Board of Public Works?

THE cotton crop of the South promises this year a large increase over that of last, while the sugar crop of Louisiana, if no mishap befall it, will be the largest ever cut. There are millions of acres, through some of the best portions of the Southern States, that lie idle from year to year for want of both labor and capital. The capacity of the country is scarcely computable, and the future will demonstrate that nothing approaching its possibilities has ever been reached. With climate and soil unsurpassed, water and fuel abundant, and of the best character, we look forward to the time when the South will far outstrip her former glory as an agricultural field, inviting to all. Immigration is fast turning from the more northerly States and pushing southward toward Tennessee, Texas and Georgia, and with the settlement of all political disturbances, and the removal of all riotous elements from the country, the South is bound to prosper beyond all thought.

There is one element yet of trouble which must be removed wholly before a full degree of prosperity can be reached. There are too many idle and shiftless white men, sons of decayed families whose grandeur and potency fled on the downfall of the rebellion and slavery, and these act as a serious bar on the rising generation, who would work, if work were made respectable. The old prejudice against the freed man is dying out; and in a few years the feeling which took root at the close of the war, of starving out or otherwise killing off the blacks, will be wholly eradicated. With this ought to come the achievement of the fullest hopes of the South, and its true greatness as the producing region of the country par excellence.

SMOKY ISLAND.

It is pretty well known to our readers that lying opposite the "Point" there is, in Allegheny, a strip of land, or what is sometimes land and sometimes swamp, known by the several titles of "Kilbuck," or "Smoky Island." The area of this tract is estimated to be from eighty to one hundred acres, and all capable of improvement for building lots, public parks, or manufacturing sites. The ownership of this property has remained long in dispute, and our courts are now about settling that point, the result of which will vest the title either in the city or a company of well-known citizens. Whatever the end of the pending suit in our Courts may be, Smoky Island will doubtless fill hereafter a more important sphere than it has yet attained. Whether it is in the future to be the central point for the railroad termini of this section of country, or whether, as some suppose, mills and furnaces are to occupy its limits, can only be developed after the close of the litigation now going on for its ownership, and can only succeed in the event of the claimants proving title. Should the city gain the suit, a very large and beautiful addition will, in time and at little expense, be made to its parks, rendering that portion of the city largely more attractive than at present. In either event, whether the city or the claimants shall succeed, the long contest will be ended not only, but good will result to the public.

In no other city in the country, perhaps, would so valuable and available a piece of property—situated in the very heart of the city, and in the midst of its populous districts, with a river frontage of nearly, if not quite, a half mile—have been permitted to remain so long in idleness, and in utter unproductiveness. The revenues of the city would be largely increased by its improvement; and if it shall turn out that its ownership is vested without the city, then it is high time the fact should be made known, and the proper return be promptly made to the city treasury. For fifty years the title to this valuable tract has been in dispute, and during all this time the ground has remained idle and wholly unimproved, if we except the brief period when the rope-walk occupied a portion of the land. During this time the march of improvement has been diverted from this locality; and what should be the finest portion of the city, by reason of its being first laid out, is far behind the newer districts, because of the utter deadness of all energy or effort at improvement. We hope an early settlement of the pending suit will be reached, and that the question of ownership will be finally ended. The city cannot but be benefited by the close of the long contest.

Now that the location of the new Industrial Institute has been definitely settled, and a portion of this ground has been selected whereon to erect its magnificent buildings, the public should bend every energy, and give all needed assistance toward the completion of this work, as it will doubtless prove the entering wedge toward the improvement of this fine tract of land. Should the city of Allegheny come into undisputed possession, as is now likely to be the case with a large part of the tract, at least, the public will, doubtless, be large gainers, inasmuch as it is no part of the design, nor indeed would there be any authority to cut the land up into lots for building purposes, but on the contrary, an additional park would be obtained at small cost, which would, besides affording another beautiful "breathing spot," for all the people of both cities, add largely to the taxable valuation of the First and Fifth wards of Allegheny, if not also of the lower wards of this city.

A NEW YORK paper suggests that the great falling off in the circulation of the rival newspapers of Plymouth Church, Mr. Bowen's Independent, and Mr. Beecher's Christian Union, is the effect of the scandal and a token of the popular disgust with "both their houses." Last year's report of the circulation of the Christian Union was 119,000, this year 78,000; of the Independent last year, 42,000, this year, 35,000; while it is only a few years since the Independent was accredited with a circulation of 90,000 to 100,000.

SENATOR JOE WAREAM, of Mifflin, is favorably mentioned as the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer.

HON. CYRUS L. PERSHING has been nominated by the Democratic County Convention of Schuylkill county for Governor.

The campaign in Ohio will be opened by the Republicans at Marion, Lawrence county, on July 31st. General Hayes and others will speak.

WHATEVER Mr. Ben Wood may be in New York, he is a Reformer in South Carolina—being part owner of the leading Democratic-Reform newspaper of the State.

THE laws of California make a woman eligible to the position of School Superintendent, and San Diego county names Mrs. Mary S. Sanborn as equally acceptable to both parties.

MR. BECK, of Kentucky, having fairly got into the field for the Senatorship, is called upon to explain his course upon the salary grab. It is astonishing how the people remember that old affair.

COLONEL SELLERS ought to have been secured by Beecher or Tilton to talk to the jury. He would have "fixed" them in a manner which would have relieved the monotony of the trial amazingly.

SISTER ROSE EVERETT, a lady of high accomplishments, and a niece of Edward Everett, is visiting Dallas, Texas, to take preliminary steps towards the establishment of a convent. She is at the present time Mother Superior of the convent of St. Vincent de Paul at Jefferson, Texas.

MR. SPRINGER'S gift of $150,000 for a new Music Hall in Cincinnati will undoubtedly secure that proposed edifice to the city. The condition of the gift, that $125,000 more be added, is now certain to be met. Of the desired amount, $50,000 has already been raised, and the remainder is as good as promised.

WHILE Mr. Henry C. Bowen and his family were on their way to Mr. Bowen's country seat at Woodstock, his daughter either lost, or had stolen from her, a diamond breast pin worth about $500. He wishes to communicate with either the party who found it, or with any one to whom it may be offered for sale.

TILTON has quarreled with Moulton, with his counsel, and with nearly everybody who has been associated with him or has tried to aid him. The New York correspondent of the Herald, who makes this statement, thinks that "Sir Marmaduke" will sink out of sight very shortly; and further, that "the grand eloquence and masterly rhetorical logic of Beach, all-powerful as it was, never could revive this corpse."

THE true story of General Sherman's book is said to be that the Appletons wanted to sell it by subscription, but Sherman, with good taste, but not with worldly wisdom, preferred to have it published in the regular way. They thought they could sell 60,000 copies by subscription, but now they do not expect the sale to rise above 20,000. The author's copyright is half a dollar a volume, or one dollar on each copy of the book solid.

THE 25th of June was the one hundredth anniversary of the landing in New York of General Washington ten days after he was appointed Commander-in-Chief. He was accompanied by Generals Lee and Schuyler, and was on his way to Boston to take charge of the Continental forces. The same day landed Governor Tyron, returning from England after an absence of a year, to resume his place at the head of affairs. But the representative of the British crown and the newly chosen leader of the colonial arms were greeted with popular enthusiasm and honored with military receptions.

MR. JAMES WATSON WEBB is provoked by a reference in the Evening Post to Mr. J. S. C. Abbott's account of Jonathan Cilly, into retelling the story of the Cilly-Graves duel. The essential fact in his [illegible] that Mr. Cilly did not decline Gen. Webb's challenge (given because of severe comments on his course as editor of the Courier and Inquirer) on the ground that, by the Constitution, he was not responsible for words spoken in debate in Congress. He produces a memorandum from Mr. Graves, setting forth that this was the precise reply made by Mr. Cilly, and giving in detail Mr. Cilly's statement that he took no exception to the character of Gen. Webb personally. According to Gen. Webb's account, Mr. Graves then insisted that Mr. Cilly should put this in writing. Gen. Webb protested, but as he explains, Henry A. Wise, of Virginia, and others, encouraged Mr. Graves to persist in the demand. The result was Mr. Cilly's refusal, the challenge, the duel with rifles (selected by Mr. Cilly himself), Mr. Cilly's fall, and an outburst of public indignation that formed one of the potent forces in a Presidential election.

GLADSTONE has an article in the London Contemporary Review entitled, "Is the Church of England worth preserving?" After summing up the arguments on both sides, he answers the question strongly in the affirmative. He reviews the divisions which have taken place in the Church, and the attempts to maintain conformity by penal proceedings. He declares the enforcement of arbitrary rules is fatal to the Church.

CALIFORNIA, which is always early with the wheat harvest, is already gathering it in the southern counties. A general review of the yield of wheat in that State shows that, whilst this year's crop will be below that of last year, it is not a failure excepting in a few special districts. It is rather to be classed among good harvests; there being no rust and no smut, and the grain being reported from all quarters of good quality.

AN old lady in New York particularly desired that a certain cushion on which she sat in church should be buried with her, and as there was a difficulty about getting it into her coffin it was luckily proposed to cut it, when several thousand dollars in greenbacks came to light. The old lady was clearly resolved that, if she did bring nothing into the world, she would at all events, as far as possible, take something out of it.

Society held its second annual meeting at Stowe on the 17th of June, with religious services, a collation, &c., the sermon being preached by the Rev. Dr. Hall, of Morrisville, from the words addressed by Pharaoh to Jacob: "How old art thou?" At the table the old gentlemen made speeches, some of them very good ones.

THE SUMMER RESORTS.

LAWRENCE BARRETT and his wife are at their residence on the Cohassett Rocks.

MISS ANNIE LOUISE CARY is sojourning at Durham, a pretty little village on the Androscoggin River.

TOWSONTOWN, Oxford, Manchester and Deer Park are among some of the pretty and pleasant places in Maryland where people are generally sure to enjoy themselves either with fishing, boating, shooting, or driving.

BESIDES the usual number of invalid visitors who seek Clifton Springs yearly for the beneficial effects of the mineral waters, it is anticipated that the new hotels will attract a large number of tourists and excursion parties this season.

THE railroad facilities to Old Orchard Beach, Lake Winnipiscogee, and other places of popular resort on the Maine Central, have been considerably improved, and passengers on the Boston and Maine Railroad may have their baggage checked through.

UNDOUBTEDLY Maryland can furnish Summer resorts in plenty for her own citizens, and have a little room to spare for outsiders. Within an hour's ride of Baltimore is the pretty little place called Popular Springs, with pleasant carriage drives and ample hotel accommodations.

AT THE foot of Jack's Mountain, one of the Blue Ridge range, and nestling beneath the shadow of grand old trees and wild and rugged scenes, is Fountain Dale Springs, just five miles from Emmettsburg. This is a snug little retreat, and fine fishing is found in the mountain streams.

THE attractions so numerous about the Thousand Islands are to be increased by the holding of a grand camp-meeting. Anticipating a crowd, the hotel proprietors have made a considerable number of improvements. The ground on which the meeting is to be held, and which has been laid out into lots, is called the Thousand Island Park. Lots have been sold at auction, and a number of cottages have already been erected. It is thought that some of the people will occupy these during the Summer.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad has just issued a neatly-printed and handsomely illustrated book of 230 pages, entitled "Summer Excursion Routes," containing sketches of all prominent resorts in the United States. It is full of information, such as tourists at this season of the year are seeking, and is sold at the low price of ten cents per copy. No person contemplating a Summer trip should fail to procure and consult this useful work, which can be obtained at any of the ticket-offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

JUST about this time, when every man's pocket-book is reluctantly taken out to settle that "little bill," a visit to Avon would probably be beneficial. It is said that two tumblers full of the waters of its sulphur springs "will make a man feel honest, and he will have a strong desire to pay his debts;" and when he quits the place it is supposed that his mind is so filled with remembrances of the grand scenery which he has enjoyed that he thinks of little else. It is not stated whether the effects of the waters are lasting.

STRANGE CASE OF INSANITY.

Two Brothers Become Deranged After Trying to Prove a Third Brother Demented.

A letter from Wilmington, Del., to the Philadelphia Bulletin says:—On Monday morning two brothers, named respectively Jonathan and William Conaughy, passed through this city on their way from Newark, Del., to Philadelphia, where they will be confined in the Pennsylvania Insane Hospital. They have become deranged within the last few days, and under circumstances that are both curious and sad. These two men are members of a family which, several years ago, on the death of their father, consisted of five sons and three daughters. David Conaughy was the eldest, and upon him devolved the charge of settling his father's estate, which he did with the most [illegible] management, freeing the estate from heavy encumbrances and leaving it in good condition, and careful investments he realized enough to start his brothers in business, and then retired on a competency. He afterwards began to drink liquors to such great excess that his nervous system became shattered, and he was confined in Dr. Kirkbride's Hospital. In April, 1873, he returned home, much improved in health, and demanded of his brothers possession of his property, which they had taken into their own hands. They said he was still insane, refused him possession of his property, and forcibly seizing him, sent him to the county almshouse in this city, where he was detained until a few weeks ago. He escaped from there and procured a certificate of perfect sanity from a noted physician of Philadelphia, and procuring counsel, again attempted to regain possession of his real and personal property.

In the meantime two of his brothers, William and Thomas, had petitioned the Chancellor to declare David insane, and on Wednesday last a jury de lunatico inquirendo was empaneled at Newark. A number of persons were examined before them in reference to his insanity, and after several hours' deliberation they declared him to be of perfectly sound mind and capable of taking care of his own property. After this decision was rendered, Jonathan and William Canaughy became greatly depressed in spirits and gave evidence of their minds being discorded. Yesterday they became hopelessly insane, and had to be guarded to prevent them from injuring themselves and other persons. It was decided to send them to Dr. Kirkbride's, and a number of their friends took them there next morning. While the train having them on board was at the depot, this morning, they had to be handcuffed, so violent were their actions. Among their incoherent expressions was one to the effect that they wished to "confess all." Their neighbors think that their insanity is caused by remorse over their unjust dealings with their brothers, but the greater probability is that the disease is hereditary and has been developed by the excitement of the past few weeks.

Recipe for Preserving Meat.

As warm weather has come at last, the following by a writer in the N. Y. Times will prove both seasonable and serviceable: There is no good reason why farmers and their families should eat so much salt pork, leaving all the fresh meat to the inhabitants of cities and villages, when the following method will keep meat fresh for weeks even in the warmest weather. I have tried it for several years. As soon as the animal heat is out of the meat, slice it up ready for cooking. Prepare a large jar by scalding it well with hot salt and water. Mix salt and pulverized saltpeter. Cover the bottom of the jar with a sprinkle of salt and pepper. Put down a layer of meat, sprinkle with salt and pepper the same as if it was just going to the table, and continue in this manner until the jar is full. Fold a cloth or towel and wet it in strong salt and water in which a little of the saltpeter is dissolved. Press the cloth closely over the meat and set it in a cool place. Be sure and press the cloth in tightly as each layer is removed, and your meat will keep for months. It is a good plan to let the meat remain over night, after it is sliced, before packing. Then drain off all the blood that oozes from it. It will be necessary to change the cloth occasionally, or take it off and wash it first in cold water, then scald in salt and water as at first. In this way farmers can have fresh meat all the year round. I have kept beef that was killed the 12th of February till the 21st of June. Then I packed a large jar of veal in the same way during the dog days, and it kept six weeks. This recipe alone is worth the price of any newspaper in the land.

A FLOCK of singing birds took wing from New York for Europe on Saturday. Among them were Mr. Myron W. Whitney, the Boston Basso; Mr. Fred. Packard, the tenor; Miss Hattie Glen, the contralto; Misses Parks and Johnson, and Mrs. Ayer of Chicago.

REVIEW OF "BLACK ROBES."

Third Paper.

To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette:

I have read with attention the several replies which the author of "Black Robes" has attempted in his Leader, to the statements and arguments of "Knox." Having placed himself in a bad predicament for a professed Protestant, and in a still worse for a professed Presbyterian, it is not surprising that he should lose his temper in a feeble attempt to extricate himself. For example, he charges Knox with "perversion," "garbling" and "intention to misrepresent." It is true, I did not in every instance quote every word or sentence in full in giving extracts from his book, nor was it necessary. But I defy the editor of the Sunday Leader to point out any example in my articles in which I have not extracted enough to present the statements and impressions he designed to make. I would gladly have noted in full in every instance, but for the sake of brevity in publication, and to save labor, omitted some words and sentences which added nothing to his very objectionable meaning. Let us see what he admits, or at least does not deny: 1. Presbyterianism is a human device—for "John Knox (was) its maker." It is no Divine system. 2. "It was his (Knox's) choice to proclaim a new faith." The natural inference of course is that Knox's "new faith" supplanted the true old faith, which was of course Popery. 3. "Knox and his disciples have perpetrated for themselves by violence and vandalism, a fame of reproach." "Knox was the first of Presbyterians," and a vile vandal? 4. As to Popery, it is highly to be praised as founded in "sublime devotion,"—and "implants saving grace"—it "preaches repentance and faith—"administers the saving sacrament of baptism"—"the redeeming rite of baptism;" and "its self-denying priests never hesitated to respond to a conviction of duty,"—"but their religion (viz. of the Jesuits) was eminently a religion of the heart"—"love was its cardinal element, and Christ with them was all in all." The Jesuits are called "an illustrious company"—their work "a Christian work," not an anti Christian superstition as Protestants to teach.

But what has the author of "Black Robes" to say in defense? For the most part—nothing! Absolutely nothing! He tells us that "Maker of Presbyterianism" "is the title by which he (Knox) is historically known." But whose history gives him such a title? Can he name any historian, unless it be some ignorant infidel or deluded Papist, who ever gave him such a title? As to the "new faith" which he says Knox preached, our author is prudently silent in the Leader. He, of course, cannot find this "new faith in the Gospel of Christ, for the New Testament is nearly two thousand years old! It may be, he tells us, that "Black Robes" does speak in admiring terms of the Jesuits, because "they could not honestly be spoken of otherwise!" It may be! "Very modest person this 'Sunday Leader!'" But this remarkable modesty entirely forsakes him when he comes to hold up to ridicule and scorn the persons and labors of those devoted men, who were the pioneers of Presbyterianism in this western wilderness. Protestants admire the labors and sacrifices of Jesuit missionaries just as they admire the victims of Juggernaut or the fanatics of Pillar saintship.

I pass now to the subjects introduced in my "Second Paper." I there quoted from "Black Robes" and the Leader their profane and scurrilous remarks upon the early revivals of religion, which were in the mercy of God granted to the prayers and toils of McCurdy, McMillan, Smith, and others, and which have so greatly blessed the land under Mr. Hammond and other modern revivalists. Of "the great Buffalo Sacrement" and the wonders of Divine grace exhibited then, and for a length of time subsequently, such men as the late Drs. Elliott, Brown and Smith have always spoken and written in terms of devout gratitude and admiration. It is of such scenes of wonder and mercy that Dr. Smith writes in "Old Redstone" thus: "There are many, we trust, among the living ministry, who would be willing to exchange circumstances with those old ministers, could they possess their joy in the Lord and witness such days of the right hand of the most High." (p. 273.) This, with scarcely an exception, is the common sentiment of the Presbyterian ministry in regard to the truth, reality and saving power manifested at that and similar revivals of that early period.

But now mark the style in which the editor of the Sunday Leader treats the same subject. He speaks of "such excitements as that which found its manifestation at Buffalo meeting house?" and dares to call them "that hollow show of religion." If they (i. e. those excitements) were indeed of God and not merely an old Redstone invention of questionable character, why were they abandoned?" He thus ventures to affirm, by implication, that Presbyterian ministers could have such "inventions" just whenever they pleased! yet we are told that "Black Robes" was written to give true sketches of its subjects.

Now in view of the case as just stated, how idle in the Leader to talk as follows: "The Presbyterian has happily outlived many of his absurd habits and professions of that date." And then he proceeds to talk of "organs and choirs and painted windows"—and in his book he sneers in his usual style at the "square walls and squat roofs, &c., of the early churches, which he [illegible] with a proper idea of devotion!" He never seems to have thought of the poverty of our fathers when first setting up the worship of God in this vast wilderness,—and we tell this scoffer that his statement that these mere externals of the poverty of the early churches were regarded by the pastors of that day as "alone consistent with a proper idea of devotion," is false—and we tell him further, that if his book and his Sunday Leader had confined their ribaldry to these mere externals of worship, no one would have regarded either book or Leader as deserving the smallest notice. He says, "the Presbyterian Church has shattered many of its old idols"—but if he imagines that her ministry and membership have the slightest sympathy with his profane mockery of such revivals as those of early times, under our fathers, he deludes himself and his readers.

In regard to the characteristic attempt to hold up to ridicule several of our early ministers, a few words will suffice.

Of Rev. Jas. Finley "Black Robes" says: "It was possible, as he saw it, to serve God and yet to lend some little allegiance to mammon too." Mammon is the god of riches, and our Savior says, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." But the author quotes "Old Redstone" thus: "He (Finley) designs to keep an eye upon good tracts of land as suitable homes for his half-dozen promising boys." This is recorded in immediate connection with Mr. Finley's coming west of the mountains, and this is "lending allegiance to mammon!" If it were a crime to acquire property for right and useful objects, the author might plausibly have pointed this sneer at Mr. Finley. But the charge of "serving mammon" is senseless. If Finley had become a Sabbath-breaker and started a Sunday Leader, there would have been some ground for the insulting language.

2. Of Rev. Joseph Smith, the author with singular carelessness, says: "He was generally known as Hell-fire Smith." But this is a mis-statement of the Record of Old Redstone which he refers to. "Old Redstone" says this—"Profane people gave him the soubriquet of Hell-fire Smith." Such persons as purchase and read the Sunday Leader, we suppose "Old Redstone" means, who have no hesitation in violating the Fourth Commandment, and perhaps most of the others, especially the one that forbids profane swearing.

3. Of Dr. John McMillan, the worst that is said by the Sunday Leader is "that he was usually dressed like the "Jack of Spades"—an illustration that is exceedingly apt and appropriate to its author, no doubt—"with boots like a ten gallon keg." This brilliant description, the Leader tells us, is quoted from a Presbyterian minister, but who or what he was he will not inform us. It is certainly Leader-like.

Of Dr. McMillan "Old Redstone" truly says: "He was the distinguished instrument in God's hand in effecting and promoting such revivals as have resulted in the enlargement of the Church by the accession, it is believed, of hundreds of genuine converts, and in the great increase of practical godliness; and which have shed a mighty and lasting influence for good on all the most precious interests of Zion and on the general community. But "Black Robes" and the Sunday Leader do not follow "Old Redstone" thus far. These they regard as "weaknesses and absurdities." "These the Presbyterian has happily outlived"—"having advanced in the direction of righteous reform."

Latest Advices Concerning Money and Stock Matters.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, July 1, 1875.

Were a business man of this city to be questioned to-day in regard to the condition of financial affairs, the reply would be no doubt colored by his own personal feelings, and not by a large and clear view of the field from various standpoints. If his business is depressed, he is apt to imagine all others in like condition. If he has a good account at his banks, and plenty of money to loan, with no good paper offering, he tells you money is a drug in the market, that there is no substantial business man who wants money who cannot have it, &c. But, on the other hand, ask a man who has a note coming due and wants a renewal, with no good collateral,—and he informs you money never was so scarce,—that the banks are not discounting for any one, that they are hoarding up their money for the purpose of paying enormous dividends to their stockholders, &c., &c. Both are right. There is no doubt money is and will be scarce for a day or two, until the dividends are made up, and a general exchange of accounts are made. Then, we prophesy that the banks will be as accommodating as it is possible for them to be with safety to themselves. That business is improving there can be no doubt. We know of manufacturing establishments in the city that have not been running on full time since the panic that are now crowded with orders, and every prospect of their continuing.

There is one thing in regard to this business revival to which we desire to call attention. We know the cry of the present day from all quarters is "economy." Now, we know it is a good, old-fashioned principle, but there is danger of carrying it too far. We heard a gentleman say yesterday morning that he contemplated building an addition to his house this Summer, but should put it off for a year or two, as he really did not need the additional room at present, and it was every one's duty to economize, &c. Now, if this gentleman would only reflect for a moment, he would see that he was not only hurting the general welfare of the community, but that this course was actually bound to react on himself. Had he built his house as at first contemplated, he would have given employment to the mason, bricklayer, carpenter, painter, upholsterer, &c., and they in turn to others depending on them. In this way business is made active, there is a demand made for money, and he is afforded an opportunity for loaning his at a fair rate of interest.

Stocks and real estate remain unchanged.

NEW YORK, June 30, 1875.

Money was easy at 2½a3; prime mercantile paper 3½a5. Sterling was steady at 486½a487 for sixty days and 489½a490 for sight. Gold opened at 117⅛, declined to 116⅞, and closed at 117. At the Stock Exchange there was a further advance in values and an active movement in some shares. Western Union stock rose under the success of the loan and was in free demand. The report that the Lake Shore Executive Committee had met, and that the earnings for six months showed 1½ per cent. on stock also created a good feeling. The Mariposa fancy continues to attract speculative interest. The stock sold at 11½a12 per cent. for ordinary and 12a12½ for preferred. It is being bought by Californians. Western Union advanced from 78 to 79⅞, and closed at the highest point. Lake Shore advanced from 61⅛ to 62⅛, and closed at 61⅞. Union Pacific was firm at 76a76½, closing 76a76½. Pacific Mail advanced from 40¼ to 41⅛, and afterwards fell off to 39⅞. Northwest advanced to 40⅛, but subsequently reacted to 39⅞. St. Paul, after selling down to 33⅛, advanced to 33⅞a34. Rock Island rose from 103⅞ to 104. Erie advanced from 13⅞ to 14⅞, and reacted ⅛ per cent. in late dealings.

The transactions on the Stock Exchange aggregated 178,000 shares, of which 31,000 were Pacific Mail, 69,000 Western Union, 8,000 Northwest, 13,000 Erie, 39,000 Lake Shore, and 8,000 Union Pacific.

Chicago Lumber Market.

CHICAGO, June 29.—A fleet, estimated at 65 to 70 cargoes, was at the sale-docks in the morning. The receipts were larger than was generally expected, but the favorable turn of the wind enabled the vessels to make a quick run across the lake. The offerings were considerably in excess of the demand, but buyers took hold more willingly than they did last week, and about 25 cargoes left the docks during the day, to go chiefly to the city yards. Prices were tolerably steady. Manistee piece stuff sold at $8.00, and other grades were quoted 50@75c per m ft. lower, or at $7.50@7.75. Boards and strips ranged from $8.50@10.00 for common, and $11@$11.50 for fair to choice. Lath were steady at $1.50, and shingles at $2.20@2.40; extra brands at $2.50@$2.65.

Condition of the Markets at Home and Abroad.

DAILY REPORT OF PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, June 29, 1875.

The leading merchandise markets continue very dull as they usually are at this season of the year, and present no new or important features deserving of special notice. The grain markets continue dull, notwithstanding the advices from Chicago yesterday were more reassuring, and there is not likely to be any very decided improvement during the next few weeks, as July is usually a dull month in grain circles. The Provision market continues to gain strength, under the influence of western reports, and the indications at the present writing warrant the prediction that there will be an early advance in prices. The general produce markets continue moderately active, but devoid of anything new or important.

APPLES—Sales in a jobbing way at $4.50@5 per bbl. for choice "Russetts" and "Willows," and $3@4 for common kinds, according to condition.

APPLE BUTTER—50@55c ₩ gallon.

BUTTER—The market continues very dull, and with the supply steadily accumulating and a stronger disposition on the part of dealers to realize, prices are weak and drooping; fair to prime solid packed, 12@16.

BEANS—Continue quiet and unchanged; medium, $1.80@1.85, navies, $1.90@2.

BROOM CORN—Trade continues very quiet in this market. A Chicago exchange, of Tuesday, says:—A gentleman who has just visited the east states that many manufacturers are almost out of stock, and will probably enter the market to purchase as soon as the trade in brooms improves. At the East a larger area has been planted with broom corn, but the crop is backward there as well as in the West, owing to the cool weather. Dealers quote as follows:—Good to choice hurl, 13to 14; brush, that will work itself into a choice hurl brush, 11½ to 13½; inferior brush, 9 to 10½; crooked, 6½ to 8½ cents.

CHEESE—The market is steady, with a very fair demand, and the recent advance is still maintained; strictly prime Ohio Factory, in a jobbing way, 11@11½c.

DRIED FRUIT—Quiet; Apples, 7½@8½. Peaches, halves, 10@10½.

EGGS—The market is firmer, in consequence of light receipts and an increased demand, as is nearly always the case just preceding the Fourth of July, and we advance our quotations to 18@19.

FLOUR—Trade continues quiet, and prices are unchanged. Spring wheat flours, $5,75@6.25, the outside figure for choice Minnesotas; winters, $6.25 @6.50 for red, and $6.75@7 for amber and white. Rye Flour, $6@6.25, and in light stock.

GREEN STUFF—Potatoes in heavy supply and lower; $3 to $4 ₩ bbl. Cabbages, $2.50 to $3 ₩ bbl; String Beans, $3 to $4 ₩ bbl, Peas, $2.50 to $3 ₩ bbl; Onions, $1 to $1.50 ₩ box; Strawberries, 10 to 12 ₩ box; Raspberries, 6 ₩ bu.

GROCERIES—Our New York dispatch of yesterday reported Coffee very firm, while Baltimore, on the other hand, was quoted unchanged. Trade here in the bean is quiet, as the consumption is always light during hot weather. In Sugars, business continues slow, as is also the case in Molasses and Syrups.

GRAIN—There is no improvement to note in the grain business, notwithstanding the Chicago reports continue more reassuring; the fact is dealers here have but little faith in current rates being sustained, hence they are inclined to keep close to shore. Penna. and Ohio Red Wheat, $1,20@1.25; ditto amber and white, 3@5 cents additional. Oats, 62@63 for mixed, and 64 for white,—we are cognizant of sales yesterday at 64. Shelled Corn, although in light supply, continues very dull, and may be quoted nominally at 75@77 free in elevator. Ear Corn, 73@75 on track, according to quality. Rye, $1.12@1.15.

HAY—Baled is quotable on track, at $17@18 for prairie, and $20@22 for timothy.

POTATOES—Old stock dull and lower, in consequence of the decline in new; sales of old Peach Blows, on track, at 90. New crop $3 to $4 ₩ bbl.

PROVISIONS—The market continues firm and moderately active. Within the past week, Lard has been advanced in Cincinnati, ⅛ to ¼ per lb.; Mess Pork, $1@1.25 per bbl.; bulk meats, ¼. It is rumored that Lard is "cornered" in Liverpool, hence the sharp advance reported in that market. The contracts unprovided for are those sold for the first half of the year.

PITTSBURGH LIVE STOCK MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, June 30, 1875.

PITTSBURGH CENTRAL STOCK YARDS.

ARRIVALS.

Following were the arrivals of live stock at these yards from Sunday up until noon to-day, and, to afford a comparison, we append those of the corresponding time last week also:

Same time last week	189 "	182 "	125 "	94 "

Briggs, Dock & Drum, Wholesale Dealers and Commission Merchants for the sale of Live Stock, at the Central Stock Yards, East Liberty, report as follows:

CATTLE.

The arrivals, both of local and through consignments, have been comparatively light, and mostly common in point of quality, but with fewer buyers and a falling off in the demand, trade has been less active, and prices have further declined. The supply of prime corn-fed cattle was light, and for these there was not much difference, but grassers, of which the offerings largely consisted, declined from an ⅛ to a ¼ of a cent. The run of Texas cattle was small, as compared with the past few weeks, which may be attributed to the fact that all the leading markets have been very unsatisfactory to owners, and the decline so great that they must have lost a great deal of money. We refer particularly to through Texans, the most of which are in poor condition and unsuitable for beef. Native grassers, which constituted the great bulk of the supply this week, continue to shrink in value, and the large offerings of this character is having its effect on good fed cattle, which have depreciated fully half a cent ₩ lb, as compared with the highest point. Stock cattle neglected, and hard to sell at any price.

QUOTATIONS.

Prime 1,400@1.500 steers	6,75@6,87
Prime 1,200@1,300 steers	6,25@6,50
Good 1,000@1,100 steers	5,00@5,75
Rough cows, bulls, etc	3,50@4,50

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The arrivals from and including Sunday up until noon to-day were but a little over one half what they were during the corresponding time last week, but with a very light demand, the market, contrary to general expectation, was still worse than last week, and by odds decidedly the worst we have had this season. There has been a decline of ¾ to 1 cent per lb. within the past two weeks, and it is generally conceded that trade was the most unsatisfactory sellers have experienced for a year or more, particularly for common stock, which this week has been hard to sell at any price, and as we close our report, there are several bunches of this character in the yards unsold.

QUOTATIONS.

Extra 95@100 lbs	4,25@4,50
Prime 85@90 lbs	3,75@4,00
Good 75@80 lbs	3,40@3,50
Common 70@80 lbs	2,75@3,00
Indianas, as per quality	3,00@4,50
Lambs, 50@60 lbs	4,00@5,50

HOGS.

The market was quite active on Monday, and prices were advanced ⅛ to ¼, but since then there has been a reaction, notwithstanding the arrivals were light. The fact is, there are but few wanted, the demand nearly always slacks off during the heated term, which has just set in, hence trade yesterday and to-day was quiet, and prices easier, as compared with Monday. New York and Philadelphia buyers are still taking a few, but Baltimore is out of the market.

QUOTATIONS.

Philadelphia hogs	7,40@7,65
Yorkers	7,12@7,25
Baltimore	none selling.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, June 30, 1875.

Trade in oil circles continues very quiet, and the market presents but little that is really new or important. Crude was quoted at $1,26¼@1,27½ per barrel for immediate shipment—it has varied but little since Saturday. Refined without quotable change, as compared with yesterday; Philadelphia delivery, 11¾@11⅞; Baltimore, 12, equal to about 11⅜, on Connellsville cars here.

Now that the Combination is no longer considered in force, our refiners no longer feel themselves obliged to conform to its rules and regulations, and there will probably be an increased volume of business before long, notwithstanding the present position of the market is anything but satisfactory.

The Barrel trade continues quiet and unchanged; countries, $1.10 to $1.15; city make, $1.28 to $1.30.

THE stage of water last evening was 3 feet 6 inches, and falling—a decline of 3 inches during the 24 hours ending at that time. Weather clear and pleasant.

THE steamboat Era No. 9 is offered for sale at Cincinnati.

No arrivals, and the Ashland for Cincinnati, was the only departure.

CAPTAIN DRINKWATER has purchased an interest in the Maumelle.

CAPT. JOHN J. DARRAGH arrived from Cincinnati yesterday, by rail.

THE Granite State is being fitted up at Ironton for the low water season.

THE Sciota will probably enter the Cincinnati and Huntington trade during the low water season.

THE Wild Gazelle has entered the Ironton and Gallipolis trade, in opposition to the Jas. Cravens.

THE body of Engineer J. J. Ferrard, who was lost off the Charles Bodmann, is coming up on the Indiana.

THE Kittie Hegler has withdrawn from the Cincinnati and Evansville trade, and may load at Cincinnati for Pittsburgh.

CAPTAIN MILT. HARRY, of Memphis, is in Cincinnati, looking after a light draught steamer for the White River trade.

CAPTAIN LEA CRANE is coming up with the Big Sunflower from New Orleans. She is to be lengthened and somewhat improved by Barmore, and sent back for business.

THE Monitor, with two empty barges and a stave boat, and the Robin, with two barges of staves, left Wheeling for this port on Tuesday, and the Exchange left Cincinnati the same day for Pittsburgh.

THE wharfage receipts at Cincinnati for the week amounted to $318.65. The following are the charges as per wharfage ordinances:—Boat 24 hours $5; 3c ₩ ton for 9 days and after 9 days 2 cents per ton per day.

PARTIES in Memphis shook $12,000 cash at the owners of the Shannon for their boat while she was at Cincinnati, but they couldn't see it; $4,000 better would have "seen them," and the Shannon would have changed hands.

IN coming up the river yesterday, the James Rees came near running over a skiff containing two children near the Washington mill, Wheeling. The skiff was caught under the guards, and the children rescued and put ashore.

DEARING, who shipped as steward on the Benton last spring, at St. Louis, and who was reported to have committed suicide, arrived in St. Louis, the other day, in perfect health. It was the steward who succeeded him on the Benton who committed the rash act.

THE J. D. Parker, en route for Cincinnati, has 27 bales cotton for Pittsburgh. A correspondent on board of the Parker writes as follows: We were 17 hours with the Belle of Shreveport lighting her off Island No. 10, and, at 7 o'clock on Friday evening, started them on their way rejoicing. Captain Rea did some splendid steamboating, and deserves great credit for saving his boat and cargo. Cargo slightly damaged.

THE Cincinnati Commercial says: Captain Geo. Cayton, who has just returned from a trip to New Orleans, reports the cotton, sugar, and rice plantations on the Lower Mississippi as never looking better than at the present time. Everybody is at work in the field, and are overjoyful in their jubilant expressions of bright prospects. The Captain says that the fear they entertained of an overflow has subsided, and that one and all, both black and white, are harmoniously laboring together. The crops will be very large.

A St. Louis dispatch, under date of Tuesday, says:—Showery throughout the day, and business dull. The Ed. Hobbs and barges and two barges belonging to the Salt Company, are taking ore at the pile. They will not leave for some days, as iron ore is coming in slowly. The Commonwealth and Bismarck will monopolize the New Orleans offerings this week. Captain Thorwegan has not concluded what to do with the Great Republic. Several parties are figuring and repairing, and will put in bids the last of this week. Cloudy and cool. The Eckert leaves here for Cairo to-morrow morning. Arrived—Ed. Robbins, from the Ohio.

ABOUT 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, there might have been seen on Water street, near 12th, three ladies, well dressed, evidently from the rural districts, who, from their conversation and manner, had not seen much of the world. Accosting a young man passing by, one of them inquired:

"Is this the place where the steamboats stop?"

"Yes, ma'am," respectfully responded the youth.

"We mean the steamboats that run to Cincinnati. Do they stop here?"

"Yes, ma'am," again responded the young man.

"Is that it?" asked the lady, pointing to the little steamer Market Boy, which was then lying at the wharf.

"Yes, ma'am," was the response.

"You're sure that's one o' them big boats that runs 'way down to Cincinnati, are you?"

The young man began to feel uneasy, but again he answered respectfully, "Yes ma'am."

Turning to her companions the spokesman said:

"Well, now there ain't nothin' so wonderful about them at all. I thought they were great big things, bigger nor our barn, but they ain't. I'd be willing to bet my new spring hat, that if one o' them boats was in the big pond on our place we could sail it there," and on they passed.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

Beaver College.

The pretty town of Beaver is just now in a whirl of excitement over the Commencement at the Beaver College, which is the pride and boast of the town. A full report of all the proceedings up to last evening had been prepared for our columns, but has been crowded out this morning by an unusual pressure of other matter upon our columns. We are pleased to note that the College is prospering, and that the past year, taking it all in all, has been one of success.

Touched by a Water Spout.

The rear end of a passenger train on the Pittsburgh, Washington & Baltimore railroad was caught by a water spout on Tuesday afternoon, near Bridgeport, about fifteen miles from Cumberland, and almost swept from the track. A gentleman who was on the train states that immediately previous to the fall there was a loud rumbling sound, and the appearance of a water spout. This spout broke, the outer edge catching the rear car, as stated, and the main body sweeping down on the track. The mountain side was flooded apparently two or three feet in depth, and the rush of water carried immense rocks down to the railway, damaging the road-bed so that trains were delayed several hours.

Semple's Ladies' Journal.

We have received the July number of Wm. Semple's Ladies' Journal. It is a beautiful paper. The first page is taken up with a large engraving of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, which is accompanied by fac similes of the signatures of all the signers. It is a very fine illustration, and is especially appropriate for the month in which it is issued. The fashion illustrations in this number are very profuse, and are all very finely executed. The reading matter has been prepared with great care, and is spicy, instructive and entertaining. The Journal seems to be improving with each issue, as this last number is the best in every way that has yet been issued. It is a model of typographical beauty, and for a home magazine it stands among the best. The children, as well as the adults, will find pure enjoyment in the illustrations and reading, and it is worthy of the fame of the house from whence it comes.

Minersville Public School.

The second annual entertainments of this excellent school were held during Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings last week and Monday evening of this week. The exercises consisted of music, recitations, dialogues, tableaux, vivants, gymnastics, etc. So great an interest in the entertainments was manifested by the citizens that many were turned away each evening unable to gain admittance. While all did exceedingly well, special praise must be awarded to Miss Emma Hunter, who sang "Tapping at the Garden Gate." She has a voice of great sweetness and power, and gives high promise of future excellence. Winna Connolly sang "Katie's Letter" in a sweet and tender voice, and was greatly appreciated. Also special praise was awarded to Miss Aggie McIntyre and Gertie Meanor, who sang "Gathering Shells." These schools are under Principal J. L. Harrison, who is one of the most successful educators in the State.

SERIOUS CHARGES.

Revenue Officials Accused of Making Improper Statements.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. James P. Reader, Special Agent of the United States Internal Revenue Department, appeared before United States Commissioner Gamble and charged J. A. Davidson, an Internal Revenue Gauger of the Sixteenth District, with having made incorrect returns of his expenses for the month of March, and also of forging a voucher for a certain amount which he presented to Mr. Ed Scull, of said District, at Somerset, for payment. The same official lodged an information against John H Cessna, who fills a position similar to that of Davidson, charging him with making out an exorbitant expense account for the month of May, and also with presenting a voucher from one W. H. McKinley for certain expenses which, it is alleged, was never signed by McKinley.

TESTS OF BOILER IRON.

The Provisions of the New Law.

The new law regarding an improved method of testing steel and iron goes into effect to-day, and will require additional work from steamboat Inspectors. In order to carry out the tests provided for machines of great power are being manufactured by which the tensile strength of the iron and steel used in steamboats may be ascertained. One of these machines is to be supplied to each Inspector in each district. The manufacturer is obliged, by the new law, to send samples for testing to the General Inspector, by whom the test will be superintended. The mark of the manufacturer will be recorded by the Local Inspector, and the test will show whether or not the mark of the manufacturer is correct. A report of all the tests is to be made at the close of the year at the annual meeting of the Board of Inspectors of steamboats. Under the new act a manufacturer is allowed to mark his goods according to the test he himself applies, but the exact strength of the iron or steel will be known after the government test has been applied, and in reference to boiler iron, the tests are to be particularly observed before being applied for that purpose.

COLLEGE CEREMONIES.

Another Gala Day at Little Washington.

The Commencement Exercises—The Last Appearance of the Graduating Class—Around the Festal Board—The New Buildings Formally Dedicated—The Finale.

Yesterday was the great day of the feast—in so far as attendance was concerned—at the jubilee among the college folks at little Washington. The excursion train which left this city yesterday morning at seven o'clock took out a full load of passengers, and the regular train about two hours later carried to the scene a fresh delegation. In this second train Gov. Hartranft, Hon. Simon Cameron, Gov. Jacobs, of Virginia, and other dignitaries took passage. Wheeling also contributed a full share of visitors as well as towns along the line of the Pan-handle, between Pittsburgh and Steubenville. The result was a great gathering—larger in number than the liveliest imagination had anticipated. A pleasing fact also, and one that ought to have given additional tone to the concourse, was that almost all the men had handles to their names, some sailing under as many as half a dozen titles. It was a social throng, nevertheless, and general enjoyment seemed to be the rule.

The day's programme was opened by the

by the graduating class. The town hall was secured for this, and it was packed almost to suffocation. The graduates occupied seats on the platform, together with the Professors and some distinguished guests. The Great Western Band was in attendance to furnish the melody. Rev. Dr. Hays, President of the College, was master of ceremonies.

At nine o'clock Rev. W. S. Plummer, D. D., opened the proceedings with prayer, and then the students had free play. The first performance was the salutatory—part English and part Latin, by J. I. Brownson, of Washington. The laws of "Retribution," as displayed in the moral government of the world, were next discussed by Mr. W. T. Cline, of Saltsburg, Pa. C. Colwell, of Kittanning, followed with a dissertation in the "Reals and Ideals"—the contrast was drawn between the practical and the merely theoretical in life. S. T. Henderson, of Holt, gave a classical oration, taking for his text, "Finis Coronat Opus." T. B. Johnston, of Brownsville, talked of "Individual effort," showing the necessity of effort to win success. "The clerk of Oxenford" was a semi-metrical production by the poet of the class—H. T. McClelland, of Chase City, Virginia. It was Chaucerian in style and modeled after the poems of that period—the moral being that the poor student of now-a-days had his counterpart in the olden time. In an oration on "National Taste," J. B. McElroy, of Washington, Pa., made a plea for a higher public standard of arts. "The Power of Association" was discussed by W. E. Oller, of Kammerer, who elaborated the old idea that "evil communications corrupt good manners." The Valedictorian then talked of "Specialty in studies," urging the importance of paying special attention to some one branch of knowledge, and closing with the valedictory address.

Several students who had been down on the programme were excused. The Commencement exercises occupied over two hours, but the audience never wearied, and the wealth of floral testimonials bestowed upon the "boys" indicated the presence of numbers of friends among the hearers. Following each address the band enlivened the proceedings with lively music, so that there was a sufficiency of oratory and of melody.

When the students had concluded, the degrees were conferred, each member of the class receiving the degree of A. B. In addition to the degrees announced in our issue yesterday, the degree of Ph. D. was conferred upon Prof. J. M. Cummins, of Westminster College, Lawrence county; Rev. Joseph Waugh, Principal of the Hollidaysburg Female Seminary. The exercises then closed, it being about half-past eleven o'clock. Next came the gastronomic feature of the day.

THE ALUMNI DINNER.

This pleasant entertainment was gotten up by the ladies of Washington and general supervision was exercised over the affair by the following committee: Mrs. V. Harding, Mrs. Wm. Moore, Mrs. Martha Morgan, Mrs. Julia Lockhart, Mrs. G. W. Miller, Mrs. Robt. Wylie, Mrs. Wm. McKennan, Mrs. Wm. Swan, Mrs. L. Brown, Mrs. Jos. Acheson, Miss Susan Hart, Miss Jennie Baird, Miss C. Wilson, Miss. S. Wells, Miss M. Doak, Miss Sarah C. Sweeney, Mrs Dr. Hays, Mrs. Prof. McAdney, Miss Sherrard, Miss McAdam.

The large Examination Hall in the new college buildings had been set apart for this purpose. It contained half a dozen tables, running across the room with others at right angles. There were accommodations for about three hundred guests. The tables presented a very handsome appearance. There was an abundance of silverware, fragrant pyramids of rich flowers, snowy linen, elegant confectionery, and fine queens-ware. The tables were set with elegant taste, and were universally complimented. How much of this was due to the provender supplied, we will not undertake to say, as facts, not mere speculations, are only here recorded. The doors were thrown open at twelve o'clock, and after Divine blessing had been invoked by the Rev. Dr. Ormond, of Pittsburgh, there was a charge by the three hundred upon the edibles. At the head-center table, the chief dignitaries found accommodation. Among them were Gov. Hartranft, Hon. Simon Cameron, Rev. Dr. Beatty, Rev. Dr. Junkin, of New Castle, Rev. Mr. Sherrard, Rev. Dr. Pershing, Rev. Dr. Allison, and others.

After the first table had been served it was found that a large number were not provided for and a second table was served—the provisions being in abundance, and the determination being, as expressed by Dr. Hays, to satisfy everybody or kill them.

It was the intention to have post prandial speech-making, but this was found impracticable owing to the large number who were to be first served. The idea was abandoned, and the speech-making all reserved until the buildings could be

FORMALLY DEDICATED.

At two o'clock the college bell called the people to the campus. It had been found impossible to hold the dedicatory services in the building, owing to the great crowd. A small platform was accordingly erected under the trees, in a shady part of the college campus. In front of this the people assembled, and from this point there was a fine view of the old and new buildings,—the contrast calling forth frequent remarks. The platform was occupied by the notables, the press representatives and the officers. The meeting was opened shortly after two o'clock, when Judge Thomas Ewing, of Allegheny, was called upon to preside, which position he accepted with brief remarks.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

Rev. James I. Brownson, D. D., Vice President of the Board of Trustees, was then introduced who delivered the following dedicatory address:

Ladies and Gentlemen; Alumni and Friends:—The corporations of Washington and Jefferson College in accepting the important trust committed to their hands by their fellow-citizens through the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the acts which united and then consolidated at this place, the two old and honored colleges of Jefferson and Washington, have not been unmindful of the progress which entered so essentially into the spirit and forms of the obligation thus imposed. Through the financial stringency of these past years, this covenant has been kept in view, with steady reference alike to the internal facilities of the Institution and its grounds and buildings. The advantages in the first form so strongly demanded in these times of competition and advancement, have been already by several classes of graduates. And, now, as we stand upon the firm foundations and under the lofty towers of this elegant edifice, we invite you to see for yourselves what has been achieved in the way of outward and material provision for a generous rivalry with sister colleges.

Behold in this costly and noble structure, the fine symmetry of which blends beauty with adaptation, the fullness of convenience with the attraction of taste, the combination of the minutest details of utility with the impressive unity of architectural triumph. This is the future seat and home, not of Jefferson nor Washington College, as they were, but of the united College of Washington and Jefferson, one now and forever in the sacred history of the past—one forever also in the greater work and achievements of the future. In our emergence from the limitations of other times—times of struggle and yet of pride, as they shall live in memory—you may read the prophecy and promise for the advancement of learning and science. We are glad to lay this offering upon the altar of Christian patriotism to-day. We ask you, one and all, to join us in dedicating it to the use and interests of sound and thorough culture of truth and morality, loyalty to our country, and higher than all, of Christ, in the work and progress of His revealed religion.

Here let it stand forth before the sun in its glory upon the very soil, and, for the present, beside the venerable structure where, three score and two years ago, Matthew Brown and his youthful assistant, David Elliott, imparted classical learning to young men, some of whom came to adorn the Bar and bench, while others thrilled the hearts of their fellow men from the pulpit, and others still filled the high places of the State and Nation. It represents a marvelous development, and yet in strange contrast to the still earlier work of McMillen and his times begun, in holy dedication to the gospel and education, a century ago. It embodies and represents the wealth and refinement of this advanced generation, starting fresh upon a new career of progress and benefit in behalf of the nation and the church. And so ever with purpose not changed but yet elevated, let it represent the spirit which made the structures of both the old sites, antiquated but still sacred to memory, fountains of blessing in their day. Of the three thousand alumni who have gone forth bearing the fruits of this culture, two-thirds survive to turn to-day in sympathy of heart to this place and this ceremony—the absent represented by the many scores who are here in person—with revived pride in the new lease of Alma Mater's life and fame and fortune. And they shall come back from year to year, as occasion may permit, from every part of our country and the world, gray-haired and youthful warriors in truth's great battles together to renew their spirits in holy fellowship with the sons of the future, who, in increasing numbers and improved advantages, shall also step forth into these arena from the beautiful halls. Multitudes besides have a large and abiding share in this splendid building and interests it represents, but Alumni of the years that are gone, and the years that are to come, it is yours in a special sense—yours in holy trust, for the uses of humanity, government, society and religion.

But why should I longer withhold the official act and declaration of this your memorable hour?

In the name of the corporation of Washington and Jefferson College, which I now represent, I declare this building, including all its halls, lecture rooms, libraries, cabinets and grounds, and including also its finely arranged and furnished society halls, dedicated to the use of which it has been erected. We shall hold it in stewardship, under our liberal charter, that we may require our noble Commonwealth as in all the past in educated statesmen. Let the banner of Stars and Stripes floating to-day over its towers be the signal of its history, and its promise for the nation, in its government, its battle fields, its diplomacy and its domestic policy. We set it apart to thorough mental culture and sound moral training. We give it over as guardians of the public welfare, to learning and science in the deepest and broadest sense of truth for truth's sake. We hold it in trust also for the Church, whose benefactions and prayers have so largely been reflected in the whole enterprise it so worthily represents. Not in the purposes of bigotry, but in the true evangelical devotion to the best good of man. And last of all, we set it up as our Ebenezer to remind ourselves and our children's children of the Lord's help hitherto, and of our supreme dependence for all time to come. In this, the most solemn of all our corporate acts, we hereby dedicate to the honor of Father, Son and Holy Ghost, one God, blessed forever and ever. Amen!

At the conclusion of this address the venerable Dr. Beatty made the dedicatory prayer, after which

Gen Harry Bingham, of Philadelphia, a member of the class of '62, was introduced and made an address from which we make the following extracts:

GEN. BINGHAM'S ADDRESS.

Thirteen years ago, as a youth just touching the marked line of manhood, I closed my college course of instruction, and, like the many of the classes before and since, looked out upon the wide, wide horizon of action, and with fear and trembling, saw the first serious duties of independent labor and manly effort. The outlook was in many respects like unto that which all had seen who had gone before, but in many other phases sadly and sorrowfully different. The nation, so long a Union in the broadest sense of the word, was almost rent in twain, and the land was covered with the lurid lights and dark shadows of internecine war and civil strife. The professions and civil business relations of all classes of men were depleted of their ablest representatives, and the voice of a people in anguish, yet in the full power of earnestness, was calling upon the youth of the land to come forward and defend the faith of the fathers of the Republic, that the heritage of free institutions might be ours to give as it had been ours to receive. In the years that had been given my College mates and myself to be favored with the instruction of a carefully selected curriculum, one most important of all lessons was continually pervading each study and surrounding every companionship—most positive in determining and maturing character, most potent in forming the correct estimate of duty, obligation and responsibility—obedience to law, local, State and national; recognition of order and authority; at all times to quit ourselves like men. That was the lesson of every hour, day and year. How well it was taught, and how well its teachings were followed, needs no special declaration to this community and to you, my hearers. [Applause.]

The speaker then referred to the great changes which had taken place since then, both in the Nation and in the College. The boys had been called to do battle for the right, and nobly had they responded, and now when he met them again on the old familiar ground he found the changes marked everywhere. Said he: "The joyous companions of my early life who survive, have become the staid, conservative, quiet citizens, and the very school of learning itself, as a distinct College, has merged into this honored and renowned institution. But those connected with either of the old Colleges can here contemplate with pride the existence of the new, and rejoice in this which is to them still their Alma Mater. Those who controlled the destiny of these two institutions, after years of deliberation, have wisely, in the cause of education, deemed a union best for the good of all, and their action in the construction of these noble buildings, bearing the name jointly of Washington and Jefferson receives the warm and hearty approval of every alumnus. The schools of learning established in towns of Washington and Canonsburg almost a century ago, and the successor of which this College now is, are identified with that era in American history now being commemorated throughout this broad land. The Centennial of the nation leads us back, and, sheltered as it is, under the honored names of Washington and Jefferson, teaches us that as their union in labor and work was for the highest conception of civil government, so may we hope that the union of these institutions may give to the world the highest conception of scholarship and manly training. Washington and Jefferson—the soldier and the statesman.

The speaker then entered into a lengthy discussion of the character of Washington and Jefferson, the principles on which they depended and the heritage they had left us. He thought that the memories which clustered around the names of such men would be an inspiration to the students of the College which was named in their honor.

The speaker then closed as follows: From out of the colleges of the land, trained under the influence of good men, will come the manhood that must mould the future destinies of the Republic. The name of the brightest examples of our history will fall daily upon your students' lips. Let the examples of these great men—their teachings of sacrifice, their patriotism, their devotion to the right, their abhorrence of the wrong, their love of liberty—ever be as familiar as their oft-repeated names. Upon the bench, at the bar, on the rostrum and in the mart will they stand, protecting the right, defending the people and uttering the law, meeting upon the same common ground, rich with their varied learning, they will be enabled to check the career of disease, bring back the glow of health to the worn and sunken cheek, and save from the fell destroyer the much-loved one, and more loved because of suffering. But above and beyond all this honor, fame, and work well done which the future holds in store for your noble sons, there will come from out of your portals a body of men who will carry for all time your crowning glory. Talents and lives consecrated to fallen manhood, laborers in God's vineyard, defenders of the faith, men undeterred by pestilence, war or famine, kneeling at the bedside of the dying in distant lands, and cheering the parting soul with benediction and prayer. Your work is not only man's work, but God's work. Fulfil the measure and demand of this great labor; then indeed will your union be blessed—then indeed will the work you have consummated be built on foundations lasting and strong. Then indeed, and not till then, will you deserve "esto perpetua." [Applause.]

EPISTOLARY REGRETS.

Dr. Hays then read some letters from absentees. Among them were the following:

LONG BRANCH, N. J., June 22, 1875.

REV. GEO. P. HAYS, President of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa.

DEAR SIR:—The President is in receipt of yours of the 19th, and directs me to say in reply that it would afford him pleasure to accept your invitation, but that he cannot do so at this time. He requests me to communicate his thanks for the kind invitation.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
O. G. BABCOCK,
Secretary.

AUGUSTA, MAINE, June 24, 1875.

MY DEAR MR. PRESIDENT.—The recent railroad accident near New York city left me in a disabled condition, but I have postponed writing till the last moment in the hope that I might fulfill my promise and gratify my desire to be with you at Commencement. But my physician prohibits the journey, and indeed I do not require his advice to know that it would not be prudent for me to leave home as I now am. I had a severe hurt on my right side, and though I am able to move round I am not at liberty to use my voice at all, so that if I could even be with you I should be compelled to play "dummy." If there be any assemblage of friends present with whom a word from me would have weight, pray speak for me; and say to them that one all pervading sense of affection and gratitude possesses me when I recall the dear old College and remember all it did for me. Its thorough instruction, its revered and beloved Faculty, its high moral tone, its good old stiff Presbyterian discipline, are all to me the most of precious memories—and it is a severe disappointment to me that I cannot be with you to mingle my congratulations for the future and recall the thousand pleasant recollections of the past. My brief address would have been equally divided between the two—and I ask you to be the medium of conveying to old friends and to new ones all the cordial greeting that you can command language to express for me and in my name.

Very faithfully, your friend,
J. G. BLAINE.

REV. GEO. P. HAYS, D. D.,
Pres't of Wash. & Jeff. College.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, June 16, 1875.

MY DEAR SIR:—I have received yours of last Saturday, and avail myself of the earliest moment to say that it now seems improbable that I will be able to be absent from here on the 30th. I find the re-organization of this Department, which is to take place on the 1st of July, under an act passed at the last session of Congress, will require me to be here at that time. You will remember when you first mentioned the matter to me, I told you my acceptance must be considered conditional, and that I could promise to be with you on the occasion of the commencement exercises, unless the public business intrusted to my care would permit it. It now seems certain that I cannot be absent without detriment to the interest of the Department, and I beg you to accept my regrets and assurance of the disappointment which I feel in being prevented from accepting your kind invitation.

Very truly yours,
B. H. BRISTOW.

REV. GEO. P. HAYS, Washington, Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21, 1875.

Rev. George P. Hays, President of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa.

MY DEAR SIR:—I have your kind invitation to attend the anniversary exercises of Washington and Jefferson College during the coming week. It would give me great pleasure to be present, but my engagements here are such that it will be impossible for me to be with you. Regretting that I cannot avail myself of your courtesy, I am,

Very truly yours,
THOMAS A. SCOTT.

There were also letters from Justice Mercur, of the Supreme Court, M. B. Hogans, Esq., of Cincinnati, Hon. Henry Stanberry, Hon. J. W. Robinson, of Marysville, Ohio, and Butler P. Anderson, Esq., of Memphis, Tennessee.

REMARKS OF GOV. HARTRANFT.

At the conclusion of the reading of the letters, the chair in a few eulogistic remarks introduced His Excellency Gov. Hartranft, who was received with applause. When it had subsided, he said: Ladies and gentleman, I am glad to be with you to-day. I am happy that I had no official business to keep me away. I am still happier that—unlike some whom you have heard of to-day—I have not been so unfortunate as to meet with a railroad accident, to keep me away. But after all I came very near not being here at all. [Laughter.] In Pittsburgh, this morning, I took up the papers and found that the great speakers who were expected, could not come, and the announcement was made that myself and my friend Gen. Harry Bingham were expected to make up the deficiency. Now if Gen. Bingham had not been mentioned, I certainly would not have been here. [Laughter.] I knew him so well, however,—knew what he could do in the way of entertaining you, that I felt it would be safe to come and leave the burden on him—which he has so well borne to-day. I'm here therefore, and am glad of it.

I congratulate the people of this great county on one thing. We have in this State eighteen colleges. If we had enough money and men liberal enough to sufficiently endow all these colleges, and then had students enough to fill them all, I would be heartily glad. But this is not the case. All our colleges are not sufficiently endowed. It was not so with you in other years, and I think you took the wisest course by consolidating, and I congratulate you upon that. High honor is due the wise men who foresaw the benefits of this consolidation, and who labored to bring it about. I think it was the true way to make such a noble College as you now have. And though the change may have awakened some feeling, I hope that all will bury such feelings and unite their efforts to make this one of the best colleges in the land [Applause.]

It is not proper for me to offer suggestions when I am surrounded by so many distinguished men, some of whom have grown up almost beneath the shadow of these college walls. I would like to say one thing, however, and that without any appearance of egotism. I love to see the cause of education progress. To no subject have I given such earnest thought as to the subject of education, and I will be exceedingly gratified if any little help I have given has been of any aid in the advancement of the cause in the State. As Executive of the State, I feel a deep concern in the matter of a higher education. I am glad, therefore, to see your college prospering, for I know that the young men who enter here and who go through a collegiate training will be far better fitted to fight the battles of life. Your past history has proven this. From this Institution you have sent forth many young men to fight the battles of the nation, and while some of them made their mark in the field, none of them failed to do fully the duty of men. (Applause.) It is so everywhere. Education develops the manhood in man.

Will you indulge me in a remark further and that I address to the young men who have had the advantages of this college. I hope they will not forget that the youth whose minds have been quickened by the instruction they have here received,—of them more will be expected. The best return they can make for all the advantages they have thus enjoyed, is to so use the education they have received, as to bring about the general welfare of their fellow men. This is, or should be, the aim of all who have had the privileges of education. The educated men should also take an interest in public matters. They should take such an interest in matters affecting public progress and prosperity, that they would be enabled at all times to diligently help good movements forward. I would especially urge upon the young men the importance of devoting at least a part of their time to the duties of citizenship. I do not mean the pursuit of politics for gain, but out of principle and from a desire the advance the public weal. I would have the young men, in short, always bear in mind the responsibility of citizenship—which is moral as well as political responsibility. [Applause.]

But, ladies and gentlemen, I will not weary you. I thank you for your kind attention. [Applause.]

Governor Jacobs, of West Virginia, was next introduced. He said he accepted the honor implied in calling him out, not as a personal compliment, but as one paid to the little State he represented. [Applause.] His was a small State, and it was only beginning to be established. Pennsylvania was a great State, and was already established; and among the advantages Pennsylvania had was her schools. West Virginia was coming up that way, and some day would also have a more enlarged school system than she now has. He was glad the College had accepted the good old Virginia names of Washington and Jefferson. [Applause.] He was not an alumnus of the college, but he had met them wherever he had traveled, in all sections of the country, filling honorable places and he had always found them defending the right. The founders of the institution had descended from that Scotch race who knew the right, and knowing dare maintain. [Applause.] He was glad to see that their spirit seemed to pervade the college still, and that attention was had not only to learning, but to the inculcation of principles of true religion. He hoped the graduates would not forget these instructions—that none of them would scatter that speculative religion full of infidelity which was sapping the foundations of our religious and national life. [Applause.]

In conclusion the speaker said he would carry back to his home a kindly feeling of his Northern friends, and would say to his people that there was no bloody chasm to divide Pennsylvania and Virginia. [Applause.]

REMARKS OF GEN. CAMERON.

General Simon Cameron was next called upon and introduced by the Chair as one whose name in Pennsylvania was as familiar as household words. [Laughter and applause.] The venerable, silver-haired Senator came forward, and by a shrug of his shoulders as he stood a moment before the audience, indicated the perplexity, which he afterward confessed, and which elicited great applause. He finally spoke in substance as follows: "Well, ladies and gentlemen, here I am. I had no idea that I was to make a speech, and I don't know what to say. [Laughter.] But one thing I can say, I'm glad I'm among you. This is a beautiful country, and I feel somewhat at home among these people. They are descendants of people from whom my own people came. The predominant religion here also is the same as that of my own connections, so I say I feel glad to be among you. [Applause.]

And now as to the special thought before us. One of the wisest things you ever did was to unite these two colleges. I am told you have graduated over three thousand students. You couldn't have done that in one college; but yet I think a union of your forces will make your colleges better all around. You have made a great advance since the early days of these colleges, now united in one. Look at that old college building just in front of us, with it Doric columns (laughter), and its plain architecture. It was a wonder, no doubt, in its day, and I've no doubt when the simple hearted folks saw it at first they thought "My God! what a tower is that!" (Great laughter). But the old building has seen its day. It has done a good work and should not be torn down. It has fulfilled its mission well, and for that reason I hope it will be left standing as a memento of other days. [Applause.] You have a new building now and it gives evidence of your progress, but I believe the time will come when the new building will be as far behind as the old. Do you doubt it? Why, look at our great State and its rapid progress. When the old building was erected the State was not so largely populated. Now we have nearly four millions of people such as the world has never seen before. [Laughter and applause.] And we have vast stores of mineral wealth, and of farming lands—all of which must be developed, and which will develop the State. So we are progressing and must progress. The whole country is progressing, too. When that old College building was erected we had but a few millions of people in the land. Now we have forty millions and before the new college building is out of date, I believe we will have two hundred millions of people; not people like the Russian serf, but people who think and act intelligently. God fearing people who are able to take care of themselves. It was education that brought this about, and it is education that will keep it up. Education makes the men useful and the women lovely. [Laughter.] Yes it does. Isn't there a great difference between an uneducated woman and a cultured lady. Take the women of your own county. When I was here before, I saw very many beautiful ladies, and I see such before me now. Of course they come from good descendants; [Laughter,] and dress makes some difference, (renewed merriment,) but after all they never would have been what they are, without schools of learning. [Applause.] So I say briefly, I am glad to see that you are establishing such schools, and meeting with success. [Applause.]

SHORT TALKS.

After Gen. Cameron had retired, short speeches were called for, and in response to repeated demands, Rev. Dr. I. C. Pershing gave his speech concerning the doings of the boys of '50, which kept the audience in the best of humor as long as he talked.

Hon. Thomas Bigham followed, and the speech-making was wound up by the Rev. Dr. Wm. S. Plummer, who made an earnest and forcible plea in behalf of higher education. The audience was then dismissed with the benediction.

THINNING OUT.

This concluded the exercises, and many of the visitors at once prepared to leave for home. Owing to the great crowd of visitors it was found necessary to attach two extra cars to the Pittsburgh train, making four in all, which were filled to their utmost capacity. Notwithstanding this thinning out of the ranks the town was not emptied of its visitors,—many of the young folks especially, staying to indulge in

THE HOP.

This came off in the Town Hall in the evening. George's band had been engaged for occasion, and the affair was on the most magnificent scale. The youth, beauty and fashion of the town were out in force, and the hop is reported to have been a splendid success.

HOME.

On the way home there was some little stir created among the passengers on the Pittsburgh train. The train struck a hand car on the track a few miles beyond Washington and shivered it. There were several men on the car, but they jumped off just in time to save their lives. The excursionists were all safely landed in Pittsburgh about half-past seven o'clock last evening. Among those who returned was Gov. Hartranft, who was the guest of Col. W. A. Herron. Gen. Cameron stayed in Washington, with the intention of going overland by carriage to Monongahela City.

Fayette Springs.

Among the Summer resorts whose merits we have frequently tested, we would class, next to the seashore, the Mountainous districts, and among these Fayette Springs, on Laurel Hill, eight miles east of Uniontown, on the National road, has always been a special favorite for the beauty of the surrounding scenery, the salubrity of the mountain air, and the absence of fashionable gaiety. Of the several places near the Springs the largest and in many respects the best, is the Stone Tavern, distant a short walk from the Springs, and to those who are to visit this locality it will be pleasant to know that Mr. C. W. Downer is still the mine host of the old Stone Tavern, and is as clever and obliging and as much a favorite with guests as when we were wont to stay at the Spring. We don't know whether it can be true, as we have been informed that he has reduced his charges to eight dollars per week. At this price for a mountain home in the summer people can scarcely afford to stay at home.

RIVER SIGNAL LIGHTS.

The Remainder of Pilot Hall's Recommendations—They are Approved by the Committee—Additional Signals Suggested.

At a meeting of the Coal Exchange on Tuesday, Pilot W. C. Hall presented a communication recommending certain changes in the location of the signal lights in the Ohio river, between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Yesterday we published so much of the document as related to the lights between Pittsburgh and Parkersburg. Following is the balance of the communication concerning the lights between Parkersburg and Cincinnati:

*Light in nook of towhead of Blanner, at head of the orchard. *Light on West Virginia side for range light for Newberry towhead. Light on head of Mustapha at the Too Big rock. Light at the foot of Mustapha, moved down at foot of reef. Light at Belleville Island, move down to the foot of bar. Lights at Buffington are range lights for the dug shute. They can be changed when Col. Merrill is through digging, and the channel locates itself. Light at Sand Creek, move down to where the tree stood on the bank for breast mark. Light at Oldtown, on the Ohio side, for breast mark, above the rocks, used by the packets. *Light on the West Virginia side, at the head of Goose Island, where there is opening in the timber, can be used for head and stern light for Gosling bar and foot of Goose Island. Light on Ohio side, at Goose Island, move over on the island nearly opposite where it now is. *Light on Ohio point at the head of Leetart Island, to flank in by. Light on Virginia side, foot of lower bar, where sycamore tree was. Light on Ohio side abreast of falls. Light at Eight Mile Island, move up. Light at the head of Galliopolis Island, for breast mark. Light on Virginia side, move up for breast mark. Light on West Virginia side at head of Raccoon Island, move down on the point. Upper light at Straight Ripple, move down for range light after you take your jackstaff off mouth of creek. Lower light, move up to lower side of creek. Light at Green Bottom for breast light. *Dogham, breast light on Ohio side, where log cooper shop stood. *Light on wharfboat at Guyandotte. The other light is a good range light coming over from Procterville to Guyan. Twelve Pole light, Ohio side, second house above keg factory. Light on Virginia side, above saw mill, for breast light. *Ohio side, above Etna Hull, for breast light. *Light above Union Landing, on Ohio side, for Ferguson bar. Light on Ohio side for breast mark at head of Greenup Shoals. *Light below steam furnace, Kentucky side, for breast mark, and range light coming up through Greenup. Light at Big Scioto, move up for head light, going down, and breast light coming up. Light on Ohio side at Kinney, move down at right place for breast works. Light on Kentucky side is right. *Light on Twin creek, Kentucky side, abreast of lower corner of rock reef. Light on Quick's run, for breast mark. Light at Brush creek, on the island, where dead tree stood. Light on point at head of Manchester, the packet men want on the Ohio side, but it is better for towboats a little lower down on the point. Light in the bend, Manchester Towhead. *On Kentucky point, at foot of Brook's bar; head light going down, also breast light. Light at Charleston bar put in the nook at the head of bar. Light in the mouth of run, Augusta bar, Kentucky side. Light at Smith's Landing, for packets to land by. Light at Chili, move up to Locust bar, for breast mark and head light, coming up through Chili reach. Light on Ohio side at snag bar for breast mark. Light at head of Richmond bar, for breast mark, shore shute. *Head of Nine Mile, Kentucky side, for breast mark, and range light coming up through. Light at foot of Nine Mile, move over to Kentucky side, at head of Five Mile, for breast mark and head mark coming through Four mile. Three lights on Four Mile.

At the meeting on Tuesday the above communication was referred to a committee which met yesterday and endorsed all of Mr Hall's suggestions, besides submitting the following additional points: New light at mouth of Wills' creek, one and a half miles above Steubenville. New light on the point opposite the mouth of Pipe creek, about sixteen miles below Wheeling. Light opposite point of rocks at Mustapha, Virginia side. Light on Shade river point. Light on Jenny Lind bar, Ohio side, at Oldtown. Light opposite old stump in the river at Wolfe's bar. Light at foot of Greenbottom, on Ohio side, to show from Rankin's landing going down. Light at Burke's Point, twelve miles above Portsmouth. Light at Richmond bar, Kentucky side, at brick house. Light at head of Five Mile, Kentucky side. The light at Duff's which Mr. Hall suggested should be placed opposite the brick church, the committee think should be placed at the foot of the high bank above the road. The Coal Exchange meets again to-morrow morning, when the report of the committee will be submitted for acceptance or rejection.

Those marked () are new lights suggested.

OPERATING AT LAST.

The Columbia Conduit Company Transferring Oil at Montrose—The Facility With Which the Work is Performed—Arrangements With the B. & O. R. R. for Through Rates to the Sea Board.

The Columbia Conduit Company has fully perfected its arrangements for hauling oil across the West Penn Railroad track at Montrose. A receiving tank of about 6,000 barrels capacity, which communicates with the line to the oil regions, is erected on the north side of the railroad at a distance of about one hundred feet from the track, and at an elevation of twenty-two feet above the track. Into this tank the oil through the line from the oil regions is delivered at the rate of about 4,000 barrels per day. From this tank a discharging rack is erected, by means of which the company is enabled to fill at the same time two of its iron tank wagons, which have a capacity of twenty-five barrels each. A level plank road has been built from the rack across the railroad, a distance of about ninety feet, to a dump box communicating by an eight inch pipe with the four large tanks on the river side. The wagons are drawn under the rock and filled from six inch discharge pipes in one minute and a quarter, then drawn over the public highway which crosses the track at this point, where they are immediately emptied by means of a six inch gate valve and hose attached to the wagon, into the dump box. The Company began yesterday for the first time, at 2:30 P. M., regularly, to haul the oil across the railroad. The facility with which this is accomplished is remarkable to one unaccustomed to it. A wagon can be loaded, hauled across, emptied and returned to its place for reloading in five minutes without haste or difficulty. It will then be seen that with the two wagons 500 barrels can easily be taken over in one hour. Yesterday between the hours of 2:40 and 6:30 P. M., or in three hours and fifty minutes, 1,600 barrels were transferred and this, too, with but one wagon for one hour and a half of this time, and with all the delays incident to the new machinery and unaccustomed men and horses. We think the refiners of Pittsburgh are to be congratulated on the prospective opportunity of fully availing themselves of the facilities for competition in the trade which their proximity to the oil region entitles them—facilities which have hitherto been obstructed by the combination created and upheld in favor of Cleveland.

We are reliably informed that arrangements have been made between the B. & O. R. R. and the Columbia Conduit Company whereby through rates will be given from the wells to the sea board, with a stop over at Pittsburgh for the oil to be refined, and a quantity of the refined equivalent to crude carried thence to the sea board. The policy of the management will be to acquire business for this line by competition.

AMUSEMENTS.

Pittsburgh Opera House.

Duprez & Benedict's Minstrels open at this place to-morrow night. Inasmuch as the troupe is well known and a favorite, it will doubtless be well received.

Germania Garden.

The grand opening of the Germania Garden, on Federal street, Allegheny, just at the north end of the Suspension bridge, takes place this evening. The musical programme, which is a choice one, will be found in another column.

LET THE PEOPLE SPEAK.

MANHATTAN, Kan.

R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Your Favorite Prescription has done my wife a world of good. She has taken nearly two bottles and has felt better the past two weeks than at any time in the past two years. No more periodical pains; none of that aching back or dragging sensation in her stomach she has been accustomed to for several years. I have so much confidence in it that I would be perfectly willing to warrant to certain customers of our who would be glad to get hold of relief at any expense. I have tried many Patent Medicines, but never had any occasion to extol one before. Very truly yours,

GEO. B. WHITING.

Mrs. E. R. Daly, Metropolis, Ill., writes: "Dr. R. V. Pierce—My sister is using the Favorite Prescription with great benefit."

Mary Ann Frisbie, Lehman, Pa., writes: "Dr. R. V. Pierce—What I have taken of your medicine has been of more benefit to me than all others and hundreds of doctors' bills."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold by dealers in medicines generally.

Health is Capital.

Who can doubt it? Do we not every day see the vigorous and clear headed pushing on to fortune, and the feeble and brain-befogged tarrying by the way? Health gives energy, vim. What a healthy mind conceives, a healthy body is prompt to execute. Difficulties which deter the invalid altogether, the vigorous man surmounts at a bound. If we would be successful, let us first be healthy. The initial step to be taken toward arriving at that condition, is to rally the failing energies of the system. As a renovant of decaying vital power, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be justly recommended in preference to all other tonics, since its superiority as an invigorant is the subject of daily demonstration. But it is far more than a simple recuperant of physical strength; it is a prompt remedy for bodily irregularities, particularly of the stomach, bowels and liver, and a reliable preventive of maladies begotten of miasma, impure water, exposure and exhaustion, the bad effects of which it invariably counteracts.
